Schools attempt to work around COVID-19

TCA closes for the week

By Randy Keck
The Community News

COVID-19 has thrown a wrench into the beginning of the school year, already temporarily closing Trinity Christian Academy and keeping Aledo ISD officials on watch.

TCA made the decision to close the school for the week of Aug. 23 primarily because of cases among staff.

“Almost immediately upon beginning in-service activities, we began to see positive cases among our staff,” TCA Head of School Mike Skaggs said. “This was particularly prevalent on our middle and high school campus. While we were able to secure substitutes to cover classes during the first three days of school, it was apparent that we would not be able to do so this week, so our board and administration agreed it best to close operations on our secondary campus the week of Aug 23.”

Skaggs said they made the decision to “let things settle down a bit as well as in light of the fact that we knew we were unable to deliver the level of care and educational quality our students deserve.

“Our goal throughout our return to school has been twofold: providing in person school while protecting the health and well-being of our students and staff. We will continue in our pursuit of those goals throughout the coming year. Our school family has been incredibly supportive, and it has been heartwarming to see the showering of prayers and support over our staff, some of whom have been quite ill.”

Council approves increased tax rate

New rate will be effective Oct. 1

By Brandi Addison
The Community News

After a silent public hearing during the Aug. 24 council meeting, the Willow Park City Council unanimously approved a new tax rate of $0.566654 per $100 in property valuation.

Effective Oct. 1, the new tax rate is about three cents more per $100 in valuation than the current rate of $0.5367 per $100 in property valuation — the city’s tax rate since 2016.

City Manager Bryan Grimes recommended the city move forward to propose the voter-approved tax rate — the maximum rate before requiring voter approval — on Aug. 10.

“You can always come off that in a couple weeks when you set the rate,” Grimes said during the early August meeting. “But once you set the rate, you cannot go higher than that. You can only go lower. The county did a similar measure.”

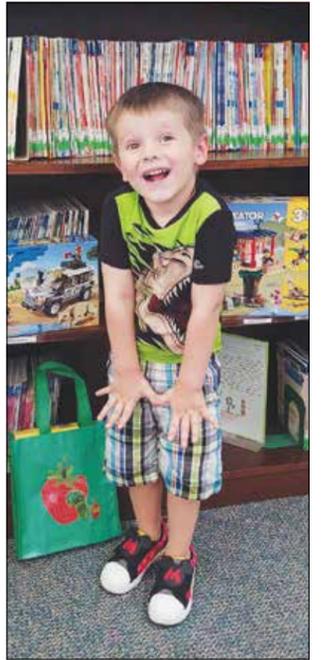

Councilwoman Lea Young noted during Tuesday’s meeting that the reason for the increased tax rates is the city’s desire to fully the fire department, which would have otherwise waited until at least April 1.

Instead, the increased tax rate will allow Willow Park to staff three new firefighters on Oct. 1.

“I challenged our city manager to come up with a budget way of doing this that did not increase our total tax rate — that involves looking at both (maintenance and operations) and (interest and sinking) taxes,” Young said. “And the only other option that we looked at was lowering our I&S — or our debt — below what suggested

HUGE SUCCESS East Parker County Library concludes summer reading program

Just because school is out doesn’t mean you stop learning, as more than 600 local youth learned.

Local non-profit East Parker County Library recently concluded its “Tails and Tales” summer reading program. The early June kickoff featured the Creature Teacher education outreach program. In addition, EPCL hosted eight weeks of summer activities for children, adults, and families in East Parker County and surrounding towns.

After holding steady with a little more than 300 participants for each of the past two years, this summer’s animal-themed reading program had a 100% increase in participation with 606 registered readers.

Participants recorded the number of minutes they spent reading to reach milestones that include sweet treats offered by local businesses — Funky Munky, Frios Gourmet Pops, and Aledo Nutrition and Energy — as well as free books given out by the library and tickets for the popular end of the summer reading raffle for prizes that included STEM, Lego, Art kits, and an iPad.

While last year’s COVID restrictions had the library taking its reading program virtual, this summer EPCL was fortunate to host in-person programming with many of the events held outside at a local park.

Besides the Creature Teacher, the library welcomed the Fort at this point, which would essentially leave us no room to do any projects over the next year.

“So, after, I will say, a lot of discussions and typing in to spreadsheets, I do think that the best thing at this point is to have our firefighters start on Oct. 1 and to adopt I&S tax rate that allows us to have some flexibility to do something for the citizens like a road project or something in the next year,” Young added.

The tax rate is set for the period between Oct. 1 and Sept. 30, 2022.

Teachers, librarians receive raise

By Makenzie Plusnick
The Community News

The Aledo ISD school board approved the 2021-22 budget at its Aug. 23 special meeting.

“Property values increased, tax rates compress, it is shifting more money from the local to the state level,” Husfeld said.

The total budgeted funds for the new school year are $91,600,991, a 6% increase from the prior school year’s budget. $68.1 million is in the general fund, of which 78% of goes toward staff payroll. It also covers professional and contracted services, supplies and materials, and other operating expenses.

This budget considers the projected increase in student enrollment and attendance rates, according to Earl Husfeld, the district’s Chief Financial Advisor. The budget has increased funding for staffing, which is needed in part because of the new elementary school, Husfeld said.

The budget allows for returning teachers and librarians to receive at least a $2,400 raise. This was important to the district to ensure that they stay competitive with surround districts, Superintendent Dr. Susan Bohn said.

District lowers tax rate

The district also allocated $3 million for the child nutrition fund. Though this fund saw a 9.84% increase, Husfeld said they also expect expenses to go up as more students return the cafeteria, therefore using more supplies.

“It will be interesting to see how that plays out. We’ve had good success [this school year], a lot of students using that,” he said.

An additional $20.4 million are in the debt service fund, which covers payments and interests for bonds. The board also voted to pay off $1.86 million in bonds early, which will save $1.5 million in future interest.

The district also adopted a new, lower tax rate at the meeting. The new tax rate is $1.3929, which is $0.0868 less than the 2020 tax rate. $0.9679 goes into the maintenance and operations fund and $0.4250 goes toward interest and sinking fund tax rate. The lowered tax rate is because of higher property values, which brings the tax rate down, Husfeld said.

The board allocated $500,000 to address potential COVID-19 needs, such as masks, hand sanitizer and additional custodial staff. This is a nearly $400,000 decrease from the previous school year. Despite these funds, Bohn still had concerns over potential problems because of the virus. The past school year, the state offered waivers and other options for districts who struggled because of the virus. However, this year, funding for potential problems, such as schools closing or attendance rates falling, is still unclear.

“What we are doing and what we will continue to do is advocate for those opportunities for us to have a plan through the state if things aren’t working,” Bohn said.

The board voted unanimously to pass the budget.

According to a press release from the district, “the board voted to prepay $1.86 million in outstanding bonds prior to maturity, saving $1.58 million in future interest costs. The district has saved more than $48.28 million since 2006 by refunding, refinancing and pre-paying bonds and taking advantage of lower interest rates.”

Character Strong

Aledo ISD canceled a new program meant to teach students about values after content was discovered that was not part of the district-program agreement, according to a district-wide email.

The program, Character Strong, was part of a state-mandated character education program, according to the email. However, when parents received a login link for the program Aug. 12, it included “a list of definitions that were never part of the intended character education curriculum to be implemented by the district and not part of the district’s agreement with the company.”

The district then decided to discontinue the program. However, the district still plans on instilling the values “courage, respect, perseverance, gratitude, honesty, kindness, empathy, responsibility, cooperation and creativity,” that the program was meant to teach throughout this school year.

Aledo ISD did not respond to requests for additional information.

were reported the first week of school. During the same period last year, zero cases had been reported.

At least two rural school districts in Texas have temporarily closed in order to contain the spread of the virus, according to The Texas Tribune.

In Iraan, which has no critical care facilities, three adults had to be airlifted to hospitals, and 23% of the district staff was out because they had tested positive or had been exposed to COVID-19, the Tribune reported.

In Morgan Mill, about half the district’s staff was out sick, prompting temporary closures.

In a communication with Aledo ISD parents, Superintendent Dr. Susan Bohn indicated she did not want that to happen at Aledo ISD.

“Our first concern is the health and safety of our students and our staff,” Bohn wrote. “We also want to keep our schools open, and I have some level of concern about being able to do so, especially given school closures we have learned about in the past few days in and around our community.”

Bohn said that, while masking is not mandated in the district, “the district encourages students, staff, and any visitors to wear face coverings while they are inside district facilities given how difficult it is to maintain social distance in our schools.” She said the advice to wear face coverings is supported by members of the school district’s COVID-19 task force composed of parents and medical professionals in the community.

She added that “our local Parker County Medical Director, Cook

Children’s Healthcare System, the Texas Department of State Health Services, the American Academy of Pediatrics, and the CDC recommend wearing masks to slow the spread of COVID-19 in schools and keep schools open for kids.”

Besides encouraging face coverings, the district is moving all meetings that are 15 minutes or longer to a virtual format, postponing curriculum nights at the elementary school level, and working with principals to make adjustments in operations to facilitate social distancing on campuses.

The case count at Aledo showed signs of climbing from the original 31 active cases (27 students and four staff) reported on Monday. Tuesday’s number jumped to 47 (38 students, nine staff) and Wednesday, the active case count claimed to 59 (49 students, 10 staff).

A school district official said there was not a particular threshold that would prompt canceling classes in Aledo ISD, but that circumstances would be tracked and decisions made accordingly.

Abbott tests negative four days after testing positive

gborders@texaspess.com

Gov. Greg Abbott announced via Twitter Saturday that he is now testing negative for COVID-19, four days after testing positive though asymptomatic.

"I am told that my infection was brief and mild because of the vaccination I received. I will continue to quarantine as recommended by doctors," Abbott said. "And I will keep working on issues affecting Texas."

Meanwhile, the battle over masks continues, with growing numbers of school districts from Longview to San Antonio ignoring the governor's ban on mask mandates. The Texas Supreme Court last week temporarily cleared the way for districts to require masks, but only on a technicality. The court left in place a Travis County judge's temporary restraining order against the mandate ban, saying typically such cases have to go before an appellate court before ending up in the state's highest civil court. A number of other cases are before various district and appellate courts in Texas.

The Paris school district, in Northeast Texas, took a novel approach to the issue. Its board voted to alter the district's dress code to include masks for all employees and students.

Delta variant continues to spur COVID-19 case rise

The number of new cases of COVID-19 in the state continues to rise steeply, with 125,033 reported in the past week, along with 937 deaths. New cases in Texas were up 27% compared to the previous week and up five-fold in the past month, according to the Coronavirus Resource Center at Johns Hopkins University. In Texas, hospitals are nearing capacity, though in a number of cases a shortage of nurses and other health-care workers is forcing facilities to leave beds empty. Abbott has asked hospitals to delay elective surgeries during the recent surge of cases.

The number of lab-confirmed COVID-19 patients in Texas hospitals reached 12,951 on Sunday with 373 intensive care unit beds available across the state, according to the Texas Department of State Health Services. The number of COVID-19 hospitalizations is up more than four-fold from a month ago and is approaching the all-time high set in mid-January.

The number of Texans fully vaccinated stands at 13.293 million, according to DSHS. That's 45.7% of the state's total population. As news of the delta variant spreads, the vaccination rate is increasing, up more than 20,000 doses daily, according to DSHS.

House establishes quorum; election bill advances

Enough House Democrats entered the floor Thursday evening for Speaker

Dade Phelan to announce a quorum was present for the first time in six weeks. Nearly 50 House Democrats decamped to Washington, D.C. in May to stop work in the House. As the Austin American-Statesman reported, bitterness remains after the walk-out and Phelan's attempt to have Democrats arrested and forcibly brought to the House floor. None were arrested.

In addition to the elections bill, which would ban drive-through voting and other provisions aimed at increasing turnout, Abbott placed bail reform, distribution of federal pandemic relief funds, border security and several other items on the agenda. This second special session ends Sept. 6.

TxDOT launches DUI prevention campaign

The Texas Department of Transportation has rolled out a campaign to share stories of Texans who must deal with the consequences of a drunk driving crash. The "Faces of Drunk Driving" will feature events around the state and includes testimonials on video from families dealing with those consequences.

In 2020, there were 963 alcohol related vehicle fatalities — one every nine hours.

"Drinking and driving can lead to tragic consequences that are 100% preventable," Marc William, TxDOT executive director said. "These consequences involve individuals who made the unfortunate decision to drink and drive along with many innocent victims of those decisions."

One of the "faces" of the campaign is Walter Tidwell, now 25. He hopped in his car after a long night of drinking and was pulled over driving the wrong way down a one-way street. Fortunately, he was stopped before causing a wreck. He recently concluded three years of court visits and still must take alcohol and drug offender courses, do community service and serve a stretch on probation. Tidwell is telling his story in hopes of convincing others of the dangers of driving drunk.

Court issues injunction in fight over Medicaid waiver

A federal district judge last week temporarily reinstated a 10-year extension of a Medicaid program worth billions of dollars to the state for health care for the uninsured. As the Texas Tribune and other media outlets reported, the U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services wanted the state to collect public input before negotiating a new extension to the agreement, in place since 2011.

The waiver provides nearly $4 billion in annual funding for uninsured treated in Texas hospitals, as well as mental health services.

Memories of T. G. & Y.

Randy Keck
rkeck@community-news.com

This week I'd like to take you back to a simpler time — a time when you could buy a hamburger and a milk shake at the drug store, buy a Hershey bar for a nickel, and get B B Batts for a penny. I spent much of the first 18 or so years of my life somewhere in the vicinity of a T. G. & Y. store.

Now I realize that if you are younger than about 35 you might not know what I'm talking about. Read on for a look at life from the early 1960s to mid 1980s.

My dad spent his life in retail. I think he started out with Piggly Wiggly before being hired by Perry Bros. (If you've never heard of T. G. & Y., you've surely never heard of Perry Bros.)

Perry Bros. and T. G. & Y. were known as "Five and dime" stores, although T. G. & Y.'s tagline eventually became "5¢ to $1.00 Stores."

Anyway, dad was sent by Perry Bros. to work in a store in Littlefield, Texas. He found a boarding house where he took up residence. (If you haven't heard of T. G. & Y. or Perry Bros., you may not know what a boarding house is, either. Stay with me.) The boarding house is where he met my mother, as it was her parents who owned and rented out the rooms in the house.

I'm not sure how long dad was in Littlefield, but by the time he left he was married to my mother, he at the age of 22 and her at the ripe old age of 18. Perry Bros. sent dad to Tulia, Texas, and that is where I was born two years later.

Quite honestly, I don't remember much of that time. My earliest memories center around Lubbock, where we lived in a little two-bedroom frame house on 37th Street, and dad was an assistant manager at the T. G. & Y. store in the Town & Country Shopping Center, right across the street from Jones Stadium.

I remember a Furr's Cafeteria was there, and there was a free-standing Dunlap's Department Store.

T. G. & Y. was a magical place. For a not-very-big store by today's standards, you could get almost anything you needed there. Think Dollar General but with less food and more general merchandise, and less stuffed.

If I remember correctly, that Town & Country store had hardwood floors that had a distinct sound when you walked on them.

My memories become a little more focused as I recall first grade. We had moved to 46th street, and dad was promoted to be the manager of a brand-new store in Redbud Square, which was in what was then the western fringe of Lubbock.

Dad must have been good at managing a store, because it wasn't too long before he got transferred to a larger store, and then to what was at the time the largest store in town, Monterey Center.

Monterey Center was like a shopping mall without the roof. There was a J.C. Penney anchoring one end of the center, T. G. & Y. in the middle. Piggly Wiggly at another end, and the upscale Hemphill Wells Department Store anchoring another branch.

That store was amazing. They had candy by the pound, a good toy section, fabrics, goldfish, and sporting goods.

There was a photo studio in the store, they cut window shades to size, and they even had a small monkey for sale.

My brother and I spent many an hour in the stockrooms of dad's stores. He would make badges for us, and that gave each of us an inflated sense of importance.

T. G. & Y. was often said to mean "Toys, Guns, and Yoyos," but it was actually an acronym for the three founders of the company, Rawdon E. Tomlinson, Enoch L. Gosselin, and Raymond A. Young.

The three partners started out in 1935, and the company, headquartered in Oklahoma City, grew to more than 900 stores in 29 states.

About the time I finished seventh grade, dad got transferred to manage one of the new "Family Centers" in Wichita Falls. The Family Centers were more like today's Target or Wal-Mart stores, though not quite as large.

At 16, I got a job as a stockboy at another store in Wichita Falls. I did a little of everything for the store that had everything: swept floors, stocked motor oil, checked in and re-stocked goldfish, cut keys, and unloaded trucks.

When I was in college, dad was transferred to Weatherford to open a Family Center there in the spot where Big Lots is now.

The mid 1980s were not a good time for T. G. & Y. It struggled with its identity.

I still run across stuff I have with a T. G. & Y. logo or price tag on it. I have a wooden ruler in my home office that was a T. G. & Y. giveaway, and that I must have used in school, as my name is inscribed on the reverse.

I was thrilled to find out there are a couple of T. G. & Y. groups on Facebook, and that stirs old memories.

I was surprised to find out in my research that T. G. & Y. and Wal-Mart both grew on parallel tracks, and as they grew they stayed out of each other's way. With T. G. & Y. gone in the mid-1980s — well, we can see what happened from there.

There are times I wish I could walk into a T. G. & Y. store just to feel the ambiance, but I can't.

That brings me to the point for all you young whipper-snappers who are still with me and are wondering. Perry Bros. is a distant memory, barely meriting a find on Google. Town & Country Shopping Center isn't there any longer. Dunlaps is gone. Hemphill Wells is gone. Monterey Center is gone. T. G. & Y. is gone.

And that's okay — nothing in this world is permanent.

The important thing is to enjoy what you have while you have it. Don't rush through and then come to a time that you wish you could go back because you didn't take the time to truly appreciate what you had.

And on the other hand, don't let a yearning for the past rob you of your future.

VOLLEYBALL

Ladycats gaining momentum

Latest win over Joshua at home

By Nolan Ruth
The Community News

After a bumpy start to the season, the Aledo Ladycats volleyball team went into the past week with a chip on their shoulder and something to prove. The Ladycats rode their momentum from a win over Paschal into another tournament last weekend up the road at the Northwest Classic.

The girls played three times each on Thursday, Aug. 19, and Friday, Aug. 20. All three games on Thursday ended in straight sets. The girls fell to Justin Northwest and Lucas Lovejoy with a win against Austin Vandegrift in between. A notable difference in the tournament opposed to normal matches is that each match was a best-of-three instead of a best-of-five.

After going 1-2 on Thursday, Aledo rebounded with back-to-back wins on Friday over Frisco Liberty and Arlington Lamar. The match against Lamar went into a deciding third set that the Ladycats won decisively. Unfortunately, Aledo could not sweep the day, falling to Decatur in straight sets to end day two.

It was on Saturday, Aug. 21, that the Ladycats made their bounce-back statement by defeating Denton High and Rockwall-Heath to bring their record to 7-7 and even out the early season.

After the tournament, Aledo turned around and started preparing for the Lady Owls of Joshua to come to town for a non-district match.

The Ladycats won the first two sets 25-14 and 25-17 to take a stranglehold on the match. However, being one set away from getting swept, Joshua pushed back and challenged Aledo, taking the third set 21-25. They did not stop there. The Lady Owls kept pushing back and almost took the fourth set, but the Ladycats held firm and took the fourth set 26-24 to defeat Joshua and move their record to 8-7 on the season.

This weekend, the team will travel to Leander for the Volleypalooza tournament before coming back to Parker County to head down the road to Weatherford to face the Lady Roos at 6 p.m. on Tuesday.

FOOTBALL

Big matchup brews against Lone Star

By Nolan Ruth
The Community News

When the new football season started, there were a number of games circled around the state as marquee matchups. Most were scheduled to be played during Week One while Aledo was playing Weatherford. This set up the perfect circumstance for the Bearcats' Week Two game against Frisco Lone Star to be among the most anticipated games in Texas.

The hometown Rangers started the season ranked ninth in 5A Division I after a somewhat disappointing 7-4 season in 2020. Despite a rough regular season that included a loss to Aledo at Bearcat Stadium, Lone Star managed to make it to the regional semifinals before falling to Highland Park.

Three-star, Oklahoma State commit Garret Rangel is back leading the offense for the Rangers and is hungry to finish business after falling short the past two seasons. His weapon, Ashton Jeanty, returns as well after a 2020 in which he amassed 383 yards and 8 TDs rushing, and 816 yards and 7 TDs receiving.

The big concern for Lone Star is the defensive line, which was gutted by graduation. That youth in the trenches may haunt the Rangers against the Bearcats' offensive line.

What the fans can look for in this game, is how Aledo handles its first top ten opponent. It can always be expected that these tough games can show where the holes will be within the Bearcats.

Thursday night will be a big test for the Bearcats and should show where they stand compared to the rest of the state. Be prepared for a true battle.

Band members had varying degrees of success, but a lot of fun, in the run, jump, hop challenge, singing the school song as they go. Shown are Alina Garwacki, Nick Brandt, Georgia McQuade, Austin Hall, and Luke Shelton.

Braydn Arft leads the charge as his team takes the field.

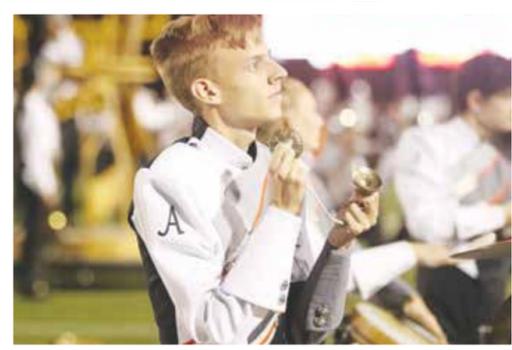

Jaliyah Rawls has fun twirling the bat as she waits for the dizzy bat challenge to begin.

Teams run in pairs with a pool noodle between their legs and they try to get from end to another without dropping the noodle. It is harder than it looks. Shown are Tayton Crutsinger, Gus Paul, and Max Moeller.

It's all coming back!

Have a great season!
