Ananian assumes leadership of Kernville Chamber of Commerce

CATHERINE STACHOWIAK

Vice president of the Kernville Chamber of Commerce, Gary Ananian, has now officially become the new chamber president.

The Kern Valley Sun caught up with him at the Kern River Valley Chamber of Commerce meeting, Wednesday November 13, to discuss this sudden turn of events. "I didn't really have time to prepare and process the whole thing," Ananian said.

According to Ananian the Kernville Chamber announced the resignation of former president Orion Sanders on the chamber Facebook page.

(Please see the Kern Valley Sun article titled, Chairman resigns Kernville Chamber for our personal interview with Orion Sanders explaining his reasons for resigning.)

The chamber Facebook page stated, "We'd like to thank Orion Sanders for his service at the Kernville Chamber of Commerce. The organization accepted his resignation yesterday evening and wishes him the best of luck in his endeavors at the Kern River Valley Cemetery District. Gary Ananian the Vice President of the board will be stepping in to fill the President position in the interim"

Ananian did not know how long the board would decide his interim presidency would last. "I have a lot of time. I love the challenge. And I love giving my community something. They deserve more and that's more opportunities. It's been less than 24 hours. I haven't really settled into it. But I'm ready to move forward, and take on the challenge, and give the community what they need."

Ananian told the Kern Valley Sun about what his vision for the chamber would be. "Right now I think my focus is probably going to be on economic development and try to have more involvement from county resources to bring jobs to the valley. I know we have housing shortages. And there's an issue with the economy. But really it's about creating jobs. I want to kind of focus my interim presidency, as economic development, trying to get something figured out, how we can get more investment in our community."

As for Sanders, he had every confidence the chamber could go on about its business without him as president. Sanders said regarding Ananian, "He is the head of several other organizations. He's the head of the (Kern River) Conservancy. So he knows how to run meetings. He knows how things work. He's been on the board for a long time. And so I believe he's very capable of managing the chamber."

Sanders explained that all executive board positions of the Kernville Chamber of Commerce are renewed every year in June. Therefore Sanders would presume that the board's plan is to keep Gary Ananian in place as Interim Board President until June when the board always votes for the executive position. Sanders also said that the executive positions are all determined each year after the board is set in place. 'They've got their challenges as well. There's a lot of projects that haven't been completed and I'm confident that they'll get those things done. They have all the ability to do it."

The Bridge attains 501c3, distributes MOUs, opens doors

CATHERINE STACHOWIAK

The Kern River Valley Bridge Connection met with network organizations to distribute Memorandum of Understandings (MOUs) and lease agreements to all organizations interested in utilizing the KRVBC facility to provide services in Lake Isabella to the entire Kern Valley community.

Wednesday, November 13, founder Karen Zuber said, "If you guys want to start offering services, we can start doing a soft opening as soon as tomorrow. And that way you can come up, take a look, set up your offices, kind of take a good look around as to which ones are going to work out, for you, and which days."

The organizations considering networking, at the Bridge, were planning to use Unite Us as connectivity for their referrals. The description and addendum of the MOU would become more uniform with input from the networking service providers.

The KRVBC was still seeking new volunteers to help the organization, which just officially became a non-profit. Zuber told the Kern Valley Sun, "We're 501c3, it's done. We've been working on it for a few months. And we completed the (Form) 1023. And within like a week we got it back. So it was a very quick process. We can accept tax-deductible donations. We're very excited, when you look at the potential that's in this building, and the ways we can use this building here."

Organizations considering the MOU and Lease Agreement included,

America's Job Center, Be Finally Free, Behavioral Health, Cap-K, Flood Ministries, Kern Community Foundation, Open Door Network, and Cerro Coso Community College, Garden Pathways among others. KRVBC expects services to the facility as a one-stop shop to fill the needs of residents. The KRVBC plans to have some services to assist others in attaining job training, counseling, and other assistance. However services for the underserved of the valley will not include a homeless shelter.

Zuber hoped the facility would eventually include kitchen facilities, a computer lab, and offices for mental health services, among other options.

She was grateful for everyone who helped get the building ready and contractors who did beautiful work.

Cemetery chair resigns from board

CATHERINE STACHOWIAK

During a meeting of the cemetery board, Tuesday November 12, a number of things occurred including the announcement of the chair of the board of trustees resigning.

During directors comments period on the agenda, Harry Schustz, who has been the board's Chairperson/President for the Kern River Valley Cemetery District, resigned his position as trustee. Schustz has been a board trustee since November 2019, and was voted into the position of Board Chairperson/President in 2020.

Schustz stated, "This is my official last board meeting with you as a board. This is my fifth year. I decided that my term ends November 24th and I'll be resigning at that point. But from today until the 24th I am available, for your support and the district's support, whatever I can do to help. And then of course after that I'll be a member of the public but I'll be more than happy to help wherever I can. I do feel connected and committed still."

Buffering the unexpectedness of his announcement Schustz said, "It's been an honor and a privilege to have served with each one of you. Your dedication, and your perspective, and your insight has really moved the district forward especially in the hard times. And I want to thank you all, each one of you, for that. And I wish this board success moving forward. I know in January, that you will all make the best decisions, that moves this district forward. So I just want to thank you all."

Mike Ryan chimed in and said, "I am amazed where this board, I started on this board a year ago, from where it started, and where it is today, and under your direction. And the tough times that this board went through with harassment and etc. The way the board supported one another, and especially your support, was overwhelming. We kind of didn't know much about one another, and everything, and then all of the sudden had come together, and put up a united front, and stick with it. And I think it's truly amazing."

Schustz said in response to Ryan's comment, "I agree with that."

Trustee Esteban Olivares said,

"I feel like you've been quite the juggernaut of direction and logic. And not just that, but being able to calculate what we could do, to better this district. And I guarantee that, without you, none of this would have been possible. So thank you."

Schustz responded, saying, "Thank you for saying that"

Trustee Kathy Agapiou said, "It's been an honor to serve along side you as well. And it's amazing what we've all gone through in the last year. Like Michael, I've only been here, August was a year. And it was nothing that I expected. I didn't think we were going to have such rocky roads. But with everybody joining forces, and under your guidance, I think we persevered rather well. And thank you for keeping us sane."

Schustz said, "You're all very welcome."

Teresa Barnum, who only recently signed on as trustee said, "You guys know how new I am to the board. And so I'm just appreciating this experience

Chairman resigns Kernville Chamber

CATHERINE STACHOWIAK

Longtime President of the Kernville Chamber of Commerce, Orion Sanders, told the Kern Valley Sun on Wednesday, November 13 that he announced to the chamber board his decision to resign Tuesday, November

While everyone on the chamber knew he had his plate overloaded with his new job, as District Manager for the Kern River Valley Cemetery District, and his own concert production business, Notorious Entertainment, as well as running a nonprofit, Sarge's Wreaths 4 Vets, his email resignation letter still came suddenly and unexpectedly.

Nevertheless Sanders did not make his decision, to resign the chamber board, over night. He said, "I had been thinking about it (resigning) for awhile. Primarily when I took the cemetery job. My time is very thin. And I was unable to put in the time and effort that it takes to run the chamber office, and maintain the rodeo grounds, as well. Both things were my responsibility. But I have so many irons in the fire. And I have so many different things that I'm involved in, between the cemetery, and my business, and my non profit, that it was time that something had to give. And so I just didn't have enough time to do everything that I was involved in. I had been thinking about it for a while. The timing just became right. So I made the decision. Sanders sent a resignation letter to the Kernville Chamber of Commerce board, via email, effective immediately. He resigned the board, all together, as well as the presidency. He said, "The board is very capable of going on without me. There's a lot of good people there. They have a lot of good ideas. And they're totally in good hands. I have no doubt about that. They will be perfectly fine.'

Sanders said some of events he put on with Notorious Entertainment, to bring in tourism through the chamber, had not been necessarily 100 percent successful. However he's considering continuing the Blues Fest because it is a successful event and has a good following, mainly because it has been around for 13 years. Other events he's done in Kernville may not continue as before. "The Kernville Chamber of Commerce deserves more effort that I'm able to put into it," he said.

Sanders served as president for over 4 years and had served on the board for close to 7 years.

Because Sanders had been care taking the rodeo grounds for years, he's hoping the chamber will find the right ning recipe," states Jeremy Roberts.

Part of Owen's success is attributed to the beauty of the Kern River Valley, which is why the local community supports its Camp Outdoor Education Project (C.O.E.P). C.O.E.P, a project-based learning program, incorporates the Universal Design for Learning so that each child can glean lessons from the program and incorporate them into their personal lives.

C.O.E.P. engages Camp Owen's mindset of "stewardship, servitude, and education," allowing for an educational transfer by creating a healthy mindset of caring about one's life, neighborhood, and commu-

Camp Owen's mindset encourages youth to become community-focused and asks them to leave their community better than they found it. The staff and youth at Owen are responsible for local trail conservation, ecosystem restoration, and trash removal from trails, riverbanks, and forests. Camp Owen actively participates in other Kern River Valley events like the Whiskey Flat Days and food distributions.

Jason Hillis mentioned that Owen's goal is to take at-risk youth, introduce them to healthy habits and hard work, and foster a sense of accountability. The staff at Owen incorporates the role of model and mentor for the youth, leading the youth to do well.

Hillis states, "Over four to six months, you put 20 pounds on them, show them the value of a hard day's work, the value and importance of respecting others, and they get caught up on credits in school"

Cemetery trustees request stipend raise on agenda

Under the New Business section of the November 12 agenda for the meeting for the Kern River Valley Public Cemetery District was the section Consider Bylaw Amendment, Provision D; Section 6.

This was the start of the board of trustees consideration to opt for a raise on the monthly stipend amount trustees

That day administrator John Blythe announced, "A couple of the trustees wanted to consider talking about amending the $50 stipend (they are paid) to $100. So it's up to you guys to discuss. questions at chamber

Three officers from Forest Service visited Kern River Valley Chamber of Commerce at their general meeting, Wednesday, November 13. The three, Eric Lundgren and Billy Brown, who are both recreation staff officers and Brian Block who is acting district Ranger, all sat together during lunch, before Block spoke to the chamber.

Block, who is only acting as Ranger for the interim, said, "I am the acting district Ranger right now. Al Watson was the Ranger prior. He was here for about 11 or 12 years. And has now moved on to Dillon, Montana as forest Supervisor

Block has already filled two of the four months. Therefore he really only has two months more to serve in the valley. His goal is to keep projects moving forward and making sure special events get signed. The Forest Service is also attempting to get more firefighter staff, in place,

After introductions Block fielded questions from the chamber. In answer to questions about the fish hatchery Block explained that the Kern River Fish Hatchery is going through analysis, to get paperwork in place, so that SCE can complete an SCE repair project. The goal is to provide water to the Kern River Fish Hatchery. The project is under control of the US Fish and Wildlife Service. If the option to re-open the hatchery did not look favorable, they would not be attempting to get water, to the fish hatchery. Answering questions about the Visitor Center, Block said, the project is a US Army Corps of Engineers project. The USACE has a plan for the building. According to Ranger Block there is no scheduled ground breaking date for the building. Ranger Block said that the Isabella Dam is a higher priority to USACE. However the plan is still scheduled to be at the old Bank of America site at the corner of Lake Isabella Boulevard at Nugget Avenue. Ranger Block thinks that either the KRV Chamber of Commerce, the Bureau of Land Management, or the Forest Service were under consideration to be located at the Visitor Center

However the clubhouse itself is private property. The part of the property, which belongs to the Forest Service, is under a special use permit and has to be re-permitted. Block said that if he is still here, when the permit expires, at the end of 2024, he plans to push the permit forward faster.

Wallace Science Fair 2024

On November 13th Wallace Elementary and Wallace Middle school hosted their annual science night. During this event teachers pick a science activity, experiment, project or display and share it with students and families. This year we had staff representation from Kindergarten through 8th grade. The science activities they shared with 90 students and their families ranged from making slime and bath bombs to exploring science fair projects and dissecting owl pellets. Hands-on science activities in elementary and middle school offer numerous benefits for students' learning and personal development. These include:

- 1. Enhanced Understanding and Retention
- Concrete Learning: Hands-on experiments help students grasp abstract scientific concepts by directly engaging with materials and observing phenomena.
- Improved Retention: Learning by doing enables students to retain information longer than through passive methods like lectures or reading.
- 2. Development of Critical Thinking and Problem-Solv-
- Hands-on science encourages students to hypothesize, test, analyze, and draw conclusions. This process sharpens their analytical and critical thinking skills.
- Students learn to troubleshoot and adapt when experiments don't go as planned, fostering resilience and
- 3. Engagement and Motivation
- Interactive and practical activities make science more engaging and enjoyable, sparking curiosity and a love for
- Students are more likely to feel a sense of accomplishment when they actively participate in their learning.
 - 4. Collaboration and Communication Skills • Many hands-on activities require group work, promot- ing teamwork and collaboration.
- Students practice communicating their ideas and findings, an essential skill in both science and life.
- 5. Real-World Application
- Hands-on experiments often mirror real-world scientific inquiry, helping students see the relevance of science in everyday life.
- This connection fosters a deeper appreciation for sci- ence and its role in society. 6. Skill Development
- Students gain practical skills such as measuring, observing, recording data, and using scientific tools, which are foundational for higher-level science learning.
- They also learn to follow procedures and develop fine
- motor skills through precise actions in experiments.
- 7. Building Confidence
- Successfully conducting experiments boosts students' confidence in their abilities to explore and understand the world around them.
- It fosters a "can-do" attitude, encouraging them to take - on challenges in science and other subjects. 8. Preparing Students for Future Careers
- Workforce Demand: Many of the fastest-growing careers, such as in technology, engineering, and health sciences, require strong STEM skills.
- Innovation and Competitiveness: STEM education helps prepare students to contribute to innovation, keeping nations competitive in a global economy.

By integrating hands-on science into elementary and middle school curriculum, educators can lay a strong foundation for lifelong scientific literacy and curiosity

The Westerner in Kernville celebrates grand opening and ribbon cutting

CATHERINE STACHOWIAK

Carol and Rodrigo Cervera, celebrated the Grand Opening and Ribbon Cutting, for their new business The Westerner, located in an old building Saturday, November 16.

Their opening drew in a pretty big crowd and lots of foot traffic, that day, along with a ton of enthusiasm from onlookers and the chamber board. Even historical documentary producer, Chuck Barbee, attended the event.

Owner Rodrigo Cervera said, "This is one of the original Quonset huts, which was one of the first buildings from new Kernville."

Kernville Chamber board director Valerie Stone said, "We are here this morning to celebrate the Grand Opening of The Westerner. Carol and Rod have just done such an amazing job of bringing this building back to life. It sat dormant here, for years, right in the town square. Now we've got this local event center. You've got a shop with all these local artists featured. And the fact that you guys really brought the local community together to do this. You used local contractors for all this. The organization, Kern Youth For Christ held a 5K Color Run, Saturday, November 16. The starting line was behind the Kernville Randall Baseball Field where the participating youths were sprayed with chalk colors before starting.

"This is our first Youth For Christ 5K Color Run. Our plan is to do this every year. We're raising money for local events," said organizer of the event, Michael Henson.

Henson who works for Youth For Christ and works with the youth at Camp Erwin Owen said, "We also are raising some money to go on missions to Africa, Uganda, Italy and Ireland. So we're just trying to make a local event so people can come out, have some fun and support the youth; because the youth definitely need our love and our help.'

The organization Youth For Christ goes to the schools and to juvenile centers and tries to give back to the community by guiding youth in a positive direction.

Veterans tell war stories at a Veterans Honor Lunch

CATHERINE STACHOWIAK

US military veterans from various branches were honored at the Veterans Honor Lunch, Paradise Cove Lodge hosted for Kern Valley Exchange Club, Thursday November 14.

Man of the Year and founder of the Honor Flight Breakfasts, in Kern Valley, Gary Zuber said, "In honor of Veterans Day I was asked to bring a few of our veterans from the Honor Flight."

The first veteran to speak during the luncheon was World War II Veteran Ferny Hernandez, Hernandez is the only World War II veteran left in the Kern River Valley. He said, "I joined the Navy at 17 in 1943. I was put aboard a troop transport, which transported more soldiers and marines, in the South Pacific, from one island to another.'

After the war was over his team went into Tokyo Bay. They were the first American soldiers to occupy Japan as an invasion force.

In 1960 he bought property in Lake Isabella and built his own place there. He is 98 years old. He said, "I've been living in the valley now for 48 years." Hernandez who attended the lunch with his lovely wife said that these days he could be found at the local bowling alley with friends.

The next speaker was Korean War Veteran Don Erwin. He said, "I joined the Marine Corps when I was 17 years old. I was wanting to get away from the farm and all those darn cows. I was next to the last week in boot camp when the Korean War started. So I guess it was about July, I was aboard ship, in Southern California, and headed toward Japan. I was aboard a troop ship. When we got to Japan we found out that you had to be 18 to be in a combat zone "So there were about 300 of us 17 year olds in the Hersh Marine Division. So they took us out of the division and put us on guard duty," he said. Erwin was there for about nine months, and got back to Korea, in April of 1951.

Those in the Hersh Division had to be home for Christmas so Erwin was sent home to the states for Christmas.

About 1953 Erwin was one of around 4,000 Marines who witnessed one of the atomic bomb explosions over Las Vegas. He said, "Now a days you couldn't get within miles of the explosion. But we walked right through ground zero, kicking up the dust and so Erwin re-enlisted for state department duty and spent 12 months at his first post before going to Budapest, behind the iron curtain where he was stationed for Erwin returned just in time to be discharged. He married one of the State Department daughters. He bought a lot in Squirrel Valley and has been up here, post retirement, for 28 years enjoying the mountains. Erwin is 91 years old.

Jim Wyly an exchangeite went to Kern Valley High School and went to a year of college before he was drafted. He told the group that his brother was drafted two weeks before he was. His brother got called to Vietnam. Wyly said he felt a bit left out because he was put on hold..

"I got orders to go to Fort Knox Kentucky. I became a APC (Armored Personnel Carrier) and a 114 Hauler that hauled marines," he said. Wyly was licensed to drive a tank. And he was sent to Korea He was assigned to the 38th Parallel and got shot at the third day he was there.

Wyly became a sergeant.

"I came home safely too," Wyly said. Vietnam veteran Bill Larson told his story next. He said, "I've lived here in the valley all my life, pretty much, and went to Kern Valley High School. I was drafted in the Army, in December 22, 1965. I went to Fort Bliss, Texas. When we came out of the examination room where, everybody stripped down, we walked around all day long with no clothes on. They wanted you to pee in a cup. So they said if you couldn't pee in the cup, give it to the guy next to you, and he could pee in it for you. That's how bad they wanted you. There were people in there that had cataracts bad and they were coming out of there with 20/20 vision. So that kind of tells you that a warm body was all they wanted." Larson went to Fort Bliss, Texas for basic training. He went to Fort Ord, California, for Advanced Individual Training (AIT). Then Larson was sent to Vietnam in July 1966. He came home in July of 1967. Larson earned the Silver Star metal, which President Lindon B Johnson personally awarded him, in Fort Benning, Georgia. Larson also was awarded a Purple Heart with his name engraved on the Larson's platoon sergeant wrote the story of his battle and how Larson earned the Silver Star metal in May 1967, when Larson distinguished himself as valiant while serving as a squad leader with company C, First Battalion, Airborne 12th Cavalry. Larson kept a copy of the letter and read it to Kern Valley Exchange Club.

Larson's company came under intense enemy automatic weapons fire from a well entrenched superior North Vietnamese Army force. Larson exposed himself to intense fire, to deploy his men against the hostile emplacements, personally destroying four enemy bunkers. As his squad moved forward, one of his men was hit by enemy machine gun fire, from a bunker to their front. Ordering his men to take cover, Sergeant Larson armed only with his pistol and hand grenade, assaulted the embankment emplacement, single handedly under a hail of enemy fire. While eliminating the bunker Larson captured the machine gun and directed his men to assault forward. He displayed personal bravery and aggressive leadership, heaping with the highest tradition of military service. The Kern Valley Exchange Club honored these outstanding heroes with certificates of appreciation and after lunch a patriotically decorated cake for dessert.

Whiskey Flat Days partners with cemetery for Old Cemetery tours

CATHERINE STACHOWIAK

Manager Orion Sanders handed a book titled Old Kernville Historic Cemetery Tour, hot off the press, to the Kern River Valley Cemetery District's board, Tuesday November 12.

The books were copies from the reprint, of a publication, the Kern River Valley Historical Society (KRVHS) previously published.

Sanders explained that the KRVHS originally published the booklet, which is about a tour of the Old Cemetery, which features fourteen people recogas pioneers of the Kern Valley. What I did was I took an 8.5 x 11 print, I found it on a CD, I took all the information and put it into a booklet," Sanders told the board.

We're working in conjunction with the historical society. That's why it has their logo on it. It's a partnership that we're going to do for Whiskey Flat Days providing tours of the Old Cemetery.

Sanders said he also plans for the district to do another book about Veterans. "We're also doing another book called The Veterans of the Historic Cemetery. There's 52 veterans over there. We're going to be giving the (Kern Valley Museum) curator all the detailed information so she can do research on the veterans buried over there," he said.

Sanders also said that the KRVHS would also have a booth for people to sign up, at the Museum Annex, during Whiskey Flat Days, for a tour of the Old Cemetery.

Sanders planned for the district to work on getting the Historic Cemetery nicely cleaned up before Whiskey Flat Days.

hard and the opportunity to be part of the process.

feel the power of something larger than themselves—the Kern's magic has many secrets for good living.

For me and the Owen staff, the Kern offers a chance to slow down and reflect on what it means to be an active participant in our lives and allows us to find new ways for personal growth. So, it makes sense to share this with the next generation by fostering a sense of stewardship, "the careful and responsible management of something." Camp Owen's C.O.E.P., the outdoors, restorative living, and personal growth are creating community-minded individuals who are learning to manage their own lives responsibly so they can positively affect their surroundings.

Chris Brown, co-owner of Whitewater Voyages, a Kernville-based whitewater rafting company, says he "loves to support Camp Owen because they're doing their important work. The outdoors can help someone figure out their lives. And if I can do anything to help someone figure out their life, I want to help".

Whitewater Voyages supported River Rat Ryan's 2024 mayoral campaign for Whiskey Flat Mayor, with donations going to Camp Owen. Whitewater Voyages donated rafting trips for the Whiskey Flat's Mayoral Raffle, where community members participated in a chance to go rafting and support Camp Owen's

KRVAA holds parking lot sale fundraiser

A8

The Kern River Valley Art Association (KRVAA) held a Parking Lot Sale for a fundraiser, this past Friday November 15, and Saturday, November 16.

Lead docent for the KRVAA, Kimberly Salazar, told the Kern Valley Sun that the event was to fundraise for more programs, and more events, and opportunities for the community, and to keep the lights on. She said, "We basically run on donations and grants, and our volunteers, which we're grateful for."

Salazar said the group was selling a myriad of items. "We have a lot of furniture, tools, art equipment, supplies,

The KRVAA also has all kinds of books for sale at the Station Espresso and Books store. Salazar said that funds from coffee and pastries are used as donations

She said, "If people are interested in any of the items they see in the pictures they can always call us and see if we still have them. I'm sure we're going to have a lot of things." The number to call is (760) 478-0077

Exchange donates to Sarge's fundraiser

CATHERINE STACHOWIAK

Orion Sanders wore one of his many hats, as founder of Sarge's Wreaths 4 Vets, at the Kern Valley Exchange Club on Thursday, November 14, at Paradise Cove

He spoke on the topic of Wreaths Across America Day when he visited during the Veterans Appreciation Sanders said, "Since we're celebrating veterans, and veterans month, and Veterans Day, I just wanted to remind everybody that December 14th we have National Wreaths Across America Day.'

Sanders said Sarge's Wreaths 4 Vets was probably a little over 300 wreaths short of his goal of the close to 900 wreaths he needs to attain to cover all the gravestones of veterans buried at Kern River Valley Cemetery. Sanders said that there are 885 veterans buried in the cemetery if you include the six veterans buried at Cottage Grove Cemetery

He said, "If you want to come out and help us place out wreaths, or you have an organization that would like to donate towards the wreaths, I have fliers here that you can grab with all kinds of ways you can do that."

The president of the Kern Valley Exchange Club, Fred Roach, handed a donation to Sanders for Sarge's Wreaths 4 Vets on behalf of the club. Sarge's Wreaths 4 Vets has taken up the mantle fundraising for National Wreaths Across America Day, on December 14.

Sanders told the Kern Valley Sun, that the cut off date for donating is November 29, which is why he's currently pushing hard for donations. He said, "National Wreaths Across America day is a celebration to remember and honor our veterans in our cemeteries. There are over 4200 locations around the world that participate in National Wreaths Across America day.'

Sanders said that Sarge's Wreaths 4 Vets raises money and then purchases the wreaths. The wreaths are transported the day before the National Wreaths Across America Day. Sanders said, "We have a very short ceremony at the cemetery. And then we place wreaths on all of our veteran headstones."

In the past American Legion Riders have given an escort, to the delivery truck, when it delivers the wreaths. Sanders said, "We have had a lot of different organizations that donate and a lot of organizations that come out to help put out wreaths. It's a full community involvement to remember all of our deceased veterans.

People can donate to Sarge's Wreaths 4 Vets at this link, which can be found at Sarge's Wreaths 4 Vets Facebook page. https:// www.wreathsacrossamerica. org/pages/142961/Overview/?relatedId=0&mod-Sw=donate

"What we really work hard to do is to ensure that every headstone gets a wreath. When we don't raise enough funds, and we can't purchase enough wreaths, some of those veterans don't get remembered and honored. So the difficulty for us is, if we don't have enough; which one do you walk past?" Sanders said, "Last year was the first year that we were able to generate enough funds to cover all the headstones on our own locally. Several years ago we did get some help from another cemetery that had some extras to help us cover. But that was someone else helping us out."

"Sarge's is just a way for us to remember our local heroes that are buried here National wreaths across Day is done in every veteran cemetery across the nation and every participating public cemetery which is what we are," he said.

The new school year might be at the beginning, but in the world of Kern Valley sports, it has and ending in the fall. The annual Awards Night at Kern Valley was recently held with all the teams gathering to honor the student athletes and the outstanding players of the season. The collection of the athletes that performed well in the class room and on the field was extensive. This takes a commitment from the athletes as they look to keep their priorities in tackling both the classroom and being a teammate on the Broncs and Lady Broncs teams.

The focus then turned to the outstanding athletes from each Kern Valley team. There were 10 teams that selected the Most Valuable Player on the season. This included the newest team to have a voice at Awards Night. This year the frosh/soph volleyball team also chose an MVP. Three teams had co-MVP's which included the JV volleyball squad, and both Broncs football teams.

The season is at hand for the JV Lady Broncs basketball team. The go into the year as a young team that has no returners. To some, this might be considered a growing experience. But this is what the JV program is all about. Getting players ready to compete at the varsity level. Kenny Bushling returns to coach the Lady Broncs after a 25-year absence. When he first started teaching at Kern Valley he coached the JV teams for two years. During his time at Kern Valley, Bushling has had plenty of coaching experience. He has assisted or coached several teams over his 27-year career. He will go into the year with the varsity coach, Bill Gallis working as a team in guiding his young charges. With no returners on the team, Bushling will have to get the Lady Broncs moving together in the right direction. The current make-up of the team will be three sophomores and nine freshmen. The three sophomores on the squad are Mille Bustamante, Hazel Kiosef, and Samantha Ruiz. Rounding out the rest of the squad are, Piper Connolly, Kaylle Ellis, Brooke Gibson, Taylor Kristy, Amber McAhren, Peyton Mental, Zoe Perfect, Bobbie Pruitt, and Alissa Webster. As the coach, Bushling has a goal set in mind. He wants his players to get prepared to play at the varsity level. With this young squad with no high school experience, fundamentals and learning how to play at the high school level will be the focus. Bushling said, "The goal this season is to help the this group. Along with learning the fundamentals we want the team prepare for the varsity level. Coach Gallis and I will really be focusing on the fundamentals for team to learn how to win. We will be seeking an HDL JV title while we build a culture of hard work, teamwork and winning. Attaining this goal is the challenge as they get ready to begin their season. Bushling has a plan and will implement this in getting his players to come together and form a team. Working along side of the varsity players, he hopes to allow the more experience players to teach the younger team. Bushling said, "We will seek to obtain these goals with demonstration, practice, repetition. Coach Gallis and I will be working together and creating a "program", not two separate teams, but a system where the girls can progress to higher levels of basketball." As they begin to play games, the courts will be filled with the chance to learn the game through competition. In the non-league it will have to be a quick learning curve as they get one game and one tournament before HDL action comes into play. Bushling will have to adjust on the fly and find which players will form the Lady Brones starters and the rotations during games. He would say, "In the non-league portion of the schedule, we will be looking to improve rapidly as we have one game and one tournament before league play. I'll be using these opportunities to find the most compatible positions for the players.'

Other HDL schools struggle to have JV teams and that will also be a challenge for this Lady

Broncs team. Needing the game experience to compete for a league title. Bushling said, "Unfortunately, several league schools will not be having JV girls' teams, however, Bishop and Rosamond, as usual I'm sure will be strong contenders.' After just a short time of practices before this Kern Valley squad will take to the court, finding what will bring this team together. When asked what he sees as the strength of the team, Bushling stated, "The strengths of our team are that we are solid at each position and I feel like we will have good depth. We have a good mix of quickness, power, height, and athleticism. We have several girls that will be able to play multiple positions."

Of course, with the lack of experience on the Lady Broncs team. The areas that need work could be extensive, Bushling when posed this question responded, "Having such a young team we will need to work on learning the game, and emphasizing the fundamentals of dribbling and passing. I want to run an up tempo game, with pressure to create turnovers and convert those turnovers into points for us. I also want to teach man defense, where we apply relentless pressure and help each other when there is a breakdown. We will be putting in maximum effort when on the court, basically not allowing any opponent to out hustle us.' Asked to share his closing thoughts as his team gets ready to play their first game of the year, Bushling said, "I'm excited to be coaching the girls after a long absence of coaching at this level. After the first week of practice, I like what I see, with the coachable, hustle and excitement of the team. With the way the coach sees his team, one can be positive that despite the lack of experience, the Lady Brones JV squad will be competitive and effective in doing what they need to do to be successful. Kern Valley will get their first chance to see what it's like to play at the high school level comes Thursday when they defend their home court against Mira Monte. The game is scheduled to top off at 5 p.m.

Lady Colts volleyball team takes tournament championship

RAY CONNER

The Wallace Middle School seventh-grade volleyball team competed in the Cerro Coso College volleyball tournament this past Saturday. They would be crowned the champion with a dominating performance.

The tournament final was a rematch with the team from Monroe. It was the serving accuracy that provided the fuel to victory. The Lady Colts only missed 10 of the 48 serves made in the match. They would also record 10 aces in the two-set championship match. Wallace took control of the match with a decisive 25-15 win in the initial set. The second set was battle, that the Lady Colts would complete the sweep to the championship.

The second set score was 25-22. Charlet Eastes led the charge as she delivered three service aces in the match. Three Lady Colts finished with a pair of aces. Maddoxx Armes, Ashley Martinez, and Emma Alfred each recorded two aces. Wrapping up the service aces was Savannah Olague with one. At the net, Wallace was credited with seven kills. Skylar Olloa and Alfred shared the team lead with a pair of kills. Chloe Smoot, Olague and Eastes had one kill apiece.

Wallace began the championship drive by taking on Murray. The match was never in doubt as they took the first set 25-5. They finished off the match with a 25-11 win to advance in the tournament. Once more it came down to minimum service errors that propelled the Lady Colts. With only five errors and 41 serves put in play led to the easy transition of the defense. Martinez was the ace leader as she was credited with five in the match. Armes followed with four, while Smoot finished with three aces. Ulloa wrapped up the service game as she delivered one ace.

Smoot led her Lady Colts teammates at the net with three kills. Alfred connected on a pair of kills, while Dani Brooks and Ulloa each had one kill. With this victory the Wallace squad advanced and would go up against the Monroe team for a chance to advance to the finals of the tournament.

It was another dominating performance by the Lady Colts as they swept the match in two sets. The opening set was a 25-10 win, while the second set score was 25-15. As was they theme of this tournament, serving played a huge part in claiming the tournament. Of the 46 serves in the match only seven were missed. Within that they collected 11 aces as a team. Leading the way was Olague with eight aces. She was followed by Brooks who delivered five aces. Eastes had four, while Armes and Martinez each had one ace. Only one kill was recorded in the match by the Lady Colts. Eastes was credited with the lone kill in the match. Wallace now had to play the waiting game as who they would face in the championship match. It would end up being a familiar opponent as they would once again face the team from Monroe. They drifted into the finals and would have the favorable outcome, bringing home the championship plaque.

Season long success is the hope of the varsity Lady Broncs

RAY CONNER

The Kern Valley varsity basketball team will begin a season in which they hang their hopes on the coaches, the returners and the athleticism of all the players. They are looking for success in making the opportunities work for them instead of against them. Bill Gallis in his 12th year at the helm leads the Lady Broncs. In the past 12 years, Gallis has coached a plethora of Kern Valley teams. He will be assisted by the JV girls coach, Kenny Bushling.

Gallis commented on his time at Kern Valley and his assistant said, "This will be my 12th year coaching this team. It's hard to believe how fast time has flown by, but each season has brought its own set of memories, challenges, and growth opportunities. I've been coaching at Kern Valley High School for 12 years, and in that time, I've had the privilege of coaching a range of sports including football, volleyball, baseball, and tennis. This season, Kenny Bushling will be my right-hand man, assisting me with the team and taking on the role of JV team coach. Additionally, I'll be leaning on Jamie Duran as a consultant for the team, whose insights and experience add valuable perspectives to our strategy.'

This season Kern Valley has 11 players on the team. Of those 11, five are returners for the Lady Broncs. Three seniors, three juniors, one sophomore, and four freshmen make up the Kern Valley squad. Two of the seniors that return are Ava Elliott and Jesie Bunting. Joining them are juniors Jayda Bushling and Elli Jeans. The lone sophomore on the squad, Leenah Troller also returns to the Lady Broncs. Filling out the rest of the squad are Senior McKayla Bachman and junior Scarlett Russell. The four freshmen to complete the Lady Broncs are Jade Montes, Emmalynn Bechtel, Ashley Plante, and Naomi Tapia. There are specific goals that coach Gallis has in mind for his team. Keeping things competitive and working on improvement throughout the season are on the top of the list. He said, "As a coach, my primary goal for the upcoming basketball season is to foster a competitive yet supportive environment where every player improves both individually and as a cohesive team. This goal encompasses developing fundamental skills, enhancing game intelligence, and promoting a culture of resilience and sportsmanship.'

His plan to get there will take both the players and the coaches building a connection into making the Lady Broncs believe in themselves and move that to the court. Gallis said, "Implement focused training regimens by creating practice plans that emphasize fundamentals, position-specific skills, and situational gameplay to build players' confidence and versatility. Strengthen team chemistry by encouraging team-building exercises and open communication to develop trust among players. Prioritize player development by identifying each player's strengths and areas for improvement, providing tailored feedback and specialized training to ensure continuous growth. Strategic game planning using our tools to study opponents and refine game strategies that play to the team's strengths, ensuring players understand their roles and responsibilities during games. Foster a growth mindset to promote a culture where mistakes are seen as learning opportunities and every player is motivated to push beyond their limits."

the recent tournament.

With a very short non-league season, the Kern Valley team will have to come together quickly in making the goal of the coach become a reality. Two tournaments and one individual game will be the non-league for the Lady Broncs. When asked what he was looking for in the non-league, Gallis responded, "In the non-league portion of the schedule, I would be looking for opportunities that allow the team to grow and prepare effectively for league play. Use non-league games to build trust and improve on-court communication among teammates. This helps players understand each other's strengths, weaknesses, and tendencies. Experiment with different offensive and defensive schemes to see how well the team adapts and what strategies are most effective in various situations. Evaluate both team and individual performances to pinpoint what works well and what needs more focus in practice. Create a balance of challenging matchups and winnable games to boost the team's morale while still providing a test to sharpen their skills. Prepare the team to face adversity by scheduling strong nonleague opponents. This will teach the team how to handle pressure and improve their problem-solving during tight or difficult games. Assess each player's performance under different conditions to finetune rotations and identify who thrives in various roles or game situations. Overall, the non-league games serve as a foundation for growth, giving a preview of what

First year head coach takes the reins of the varsity Broncs

Kern Valley returns seven players as season begins

RAY CONNER

There will be plenty of challenges ahead as the Broncs varsity basketball team prepares to start the season.

With a new coach, the Broncs do have a great deal of experience as they return seven of the 12 players on the team. First-year head coach Corey Mixon will be in charge of the Kern Valley squad as he looks forward to a successful basketball campaign. C. Mixon started at Kern Valley as an assistant on both the JV football team in 2023 and the varsity football team this past season. His assistants are a family affair as Kelsey Mixon and Brent Mixon will be underlings to the head coach. The 12 players that will form the Broncs varsity team consist of four seniors, seven juniors, and one sophomore. Returning players for the Kern Valley team are seniors Zane Carver, Bryce Smoot, and Joey Galvan. Coming back as juniors are Daniel Hinkey, Maddox Beaury, and Brandon Cox. Rounding out the returning players for the Brones is sophomore, Shiloh Galvan. Filling up the varsity squad are juniors, Jaden Arellanes, Aiden Madded, Carson Parks, Jeffrey Clark, and Jacob Redenius.

Mixon is no exception. It's and old philosophy, but still relevant for today. Having a competitive team that wants to win and continue that winning atmosphere in the future. Commenting on his goal Mixon said, "My goal is to be competitive in every game and build a winning culture."

To make this goal a reality, Mixon plans on committing his team to working hard, flowing the rules, and being accountable in all things. When posed the question on how he was going to attain this goal, he said, "Through hard work, discipline, consistency, and integrity.

With a short non-league and a quick push into league play, the Broncs will have to garner the game experience from the returners, the coach, and their own athletic talent. A pair of tournaments and one non-league contest is all the team has to before jumping into the HDL. Asked what he was looking for in the non-league Mixon said, "In non-league, I'm just looking for continuous improvement and understanding for what we are trying to achieve and how we are trying to achieve it."

Which leads to league play and the wanting to do well. The coach is realistic in his approach to HDL action. Last season the Broncs finished in sixth place. If they plan to be a force to be reckoned with, they will have to prove they have the mettle to compete for the higher echelon spot. Mixon commenting on league play said, "Last year the team finished sixth in league. I think it's safe to say everyone will be a contender until we prove we can beat them."

With so many returners and a wanting to succeed there are strengths of his team. He sees the strengths as the returners with plenty of game experience. He said, "We have a good core of returners that already understand the game. Now we just have to fine tune certain skills.'

On the flip side the weaknesses he sees is the lack of height. Which in turn means how to win the rebounding game. He also has a plan to turn that into a strength. Mixon said, "We aren't very tall as a team, so working hard and being aggressive to expect during league competition and building a strong, adaptable team.'

From a realistic point of view, Gallis knows that the HDL will be a tough go. There are teams that have built a winning culture and Kern Valley hopes to become one of those teams. Along with that they must learn how to compete with teams that are trying to do the same. Gallis said, "Rosamond is the reigning Division V champions and are historically strong. They are always a formidable opponent in the league. Bishop is another competitive team, consistently challenging for top positions in the league. Boron, known for their resilience and competitive spirit, often poses a significant challenge and Desert has one of the top players in the area and are very athletic. These teams are expected to be the main competitors for Kern Valley in the upcoming girls' basketball season.' With plenty of experience to lean on, Gallis sees the strength of his team playing solid defense and the athleticism of his players. He commented, "The Kern Valley basketball team is poised for a strong 2024-2025 season, building on past successes. The team showcases formidable defensive capabilities, a trait that was evident during their impressive 2023-2024 run where they consistently held opponents to low scores. With a roster that includes five returning players who are well-versed in the team's dynamics and strategies, Kern Valley benefits from exceptional team chemistry and depth. Athleticism stands out as another defining strength, allowing the team to maintain a fast-

Reducing unforced errors and maintaining control under pressure is essential. Enhancing ball-handling skills and decision-making can help limit turnovers during critical moments." Offering his closing thoughts Gallis said, "As I step into my 12th year coaching this team, the sense of pride and commitment is as strong as ever. This season promises to be a journey marked by both the familiar and the fresh.
