City taxes will not increase in 2022 budget

BY JILL NOSSA
jnossa@liherald.com

The Glen Cove City Council unanimously passed the 2022 budget on Tuesday, and residents will see no tax increase next year. The $64.7 million spending plan will not change the tax rate for residential property, and will reduce the commercial property rate 4.55 percent.

The city's general fund stands at $50.8 million, and appropriations from it will increase by $1.86 million, or 3.79 percent, over the current budget.

State aid will total $2.8 million, $568,000 more than the current year, Mayor Tim Tenke said, and Nassau County local aid has been restored to $1.6 million, an increase of $418,000. As well, the city's debt service payments will be roughly $1 million lower than this year, Tenke said, because older and higher-interest debt is maturing and being paid off.

The spending plan includes new hires, and small pay increases for some part-time hourly workers. The city will see less revenue from payments in lieu of taxes next year, because the Fairfield property — formerly known as the Avalon — will be restored to the tax rolls.

Last year we had to do some serious soul-searching to bring in a budget. This year it's a lot easier.

JOHN PERRONE
City councilman

By the end of this year, Tenke said, the city is anticipating non-recurring revenue of about $1 million related to the development of the Villa on Glen Cove Avenue, which will help offset the fund balance deficit.

In a public hearing before the vote, residents had the chance to get some clarification on the details of the budget. Jack Mancusi, a candidate for City Council in next week's election, took issue with the tax decrease for commercial properties. He urged council members to vote against the budget and to "stick up for the little guy," saying money was being taken away from tax-

District pre-K program moves to Gribbin Elementary from Deasy

BY JILL NOSSA
jnossa@liherald.com

As of this week, the Glen Cove School District's prekindergarten program has a new home. The program's two classrooms were relocated to Gribbin Elementary School from Deasy Elementary after moisture was found on classroom walls and ceilings, raising concerns about potential mold growth.

Superintendent Dr. Maria Rianna said that once the district became aware of the problem, it hired J.C. Broderick & Associates, an environmental testing and consulting company, to investigate. Moisture was found in the school's basement on Oct. 14, where the art room and Discovery Cove — an indoor play space — as well as the pre-K classrooms are located. The area was closed off, and the classes transitioned to a virtual format before the move.

Ed McGuire and Tara Ricker, of J.C. Broderick, offered details and answered questions at the Oct. 20 Board of Education meeting. "The basic protocol was to investigate the moisture and identify if the conditions in the space were leading to any indoor mold growth," McGuire said, noting that firm's work was con-

City of Glen Cove Mayor race heats up

By JILL NOSSA
jnossa@liherald.com

Incumbent City of Glen Cove Mayor Tim Tenke is seeking a third term in the office he's held since January 2018, while challenger Pam Panzenbeck, a former member of the Glen Cove City Council who lost her bid for re-election in 2019, is hoping to unseat him in the Nov. 2 election. The Herald posed several questions to each candidate to give readers an idea of where they stand on some of the issues.

Glen Cove Herald: What are some revenue opportunities you would explore and what costs could be cut within the city?

Tim Tenke: As the City of Glen Cove is a municipality, and service-oriented, opportunities for cuts within the city are limited. However, we do seek areas where we can reduce expenses, similarly to how we consolidated the Recreation Department with Youth Services department, and the parks department into the Department of Public Works in 2021. We look to make services more efficient without any impact to services by bringing more work in-house and reorganizing departments to remove redundancies. Expenses within the city are also expecting a decrease in 2022 due to organic attrition of employees, which will allow the city to realize when we fill those positions with employees who have less seniority. We thoroughly explore opportunities for recurring revenue streams that have little to no impact on residents. For example, we enacted the mortgage foreclosure registry and we are exploring the possibility of installing cameras on school busses to protect our children.

Pam Panzenbeck: The best way to increase revenue is to attract new businesses to Glen Cove. I feel optimistic that proper economic revival policies can help pull us out of the pandemic. We must also ensure that we do not burden our taxpayers with unnecessary fees. The tremendous costs of the use of outside law firms, which is the result of expensive lawsuits caused by actions of the current administration, will be something that we will make every effort to avoid. We need to treat employees and vendors fairly and appropriately to prevent these situations. Adherence to proper Request For Proposal practices will be a part of my administration.

payers and put into “the hands of wealthy landlords.”

“The tax levy is determined based on the operating expense needs of the city,” City Controller Mike Piccirillo explained. “Once you take into account all the operating expense needs, the revenue streams we have, the variable that’s left is the tax levy. ... The fact that in 2022, one of the commercial properties came off a PILOT” — a payment in lieu of taxes agreement — “and it went on the tax roll, it increased the assessed value” of the city’s commercial properties. “If you increase the assessed value, the tax rate goes down. It’s a function of math, not arbitrarily deciding who gets what.”

“I think this budget for one year is reasonable,” Councilwoman Marsha Silverman said before casting her vote, “but I implore this board to invest the time to look at a five-year plan going forward.”

Before voting in favor of the budget, Councilman Rocco Totino thanked Piccirillo. “I don’t know where we would be as a city without him,” Totino said. “He’s steering this ship in the right direction.”

I’m happy we’re able to give the taxpayers some relief this year,” Councilwoman Danielle Fugazy Scagliola said, “and I’m glad that we’re not borrowing for contractual obligations, so that when do our borrowing, we can do things that actually improve our life in Glen Cove —improve our amenities and make our infrastructure stronger and better.”

“Last year we had to do some serious soul-searching to bring in a budget,” Councilman John Perrone said. “This year it’s a lot easier. We brought a budget in at 0 percent because of cost-cutting, consolidations, and just working together to bring our city back on a solid financial footing.”

The adopted 2022 city budget includes nine new positions in the following departments:

- DPW: Four laborers and one security guard at City Hall ($214,000)
- Finance: Two account clerks and one tax collection and purchasing clerk ($85,000)
- Police Department: One police dispatcher ($49,000)
- Youth Bureau: One account clerk ($43,000)

Pay increases have been provided for:

- Harbor Patrol ($29,000)
- Crossing Guards ($33,000)

Pre-K forced to move because of moisture

tinuing. "We do a visual inspection of every building material that we have access to and can get to, then we use specialized testing equipment to look for and confirm the moisture. The findings indicate that we did identify moisture in some of the building materials. We did not observe any visible mold growth . . . but all of this evidence suggests that we do need to look further into the places we cannot see."

Those areas, he said, include behind the walls and in the ceilings, where elevated levels of moisture were detected. Getting to them will require "destructive techniques," McGuire said, including cutting into the walls.

"It is our recommendation that the spaces remain isolated until the investigation, and any recommendations from that investigation, could be completed," he added.

"Due to the age of the walls, we will be completely gutting those walls to ensure all areas are clean," Rianna said, noting that there was evidence that some areas had simply been patched over in the past. "We're not going to put Band-Aids on the repairs that need to get done. We want this to be done in an effective manner, and will update the community on the progress throughout."

Rianna said that some teachers at Deasy requested that additional areas of the school be tested in the interest of safety, which McGuire noted was under way. Commercial air scrubbers with high-efficiency particulate air filtration units and other devices were installed in the affected rooms on Oct. 17.

Board President Lia Leone asked about the safety of the students and staff who are still in the building. "How can you be certain that kids and staff in the rest of the building are safe at this time," Leone asked, "and that it's OK for them to be going into the school?"

"First and foremost is that schools have a process for identifying issues within a building," McGuire replied. "We were called in to investigate problems identified in specific areas. Our investigation thus far of the basement area has not identified that this condition has spread outside this area. The moisture seems localized to the exterior walls and in the building materials. The additional investigation will get us into those walls to see if there is an impact at a greater extent, but at this point we have not found any evidence to suggest it is outside these areas that we've inspected."

McGuire added that additional isolation barriers might be put in place during demolition work, and addressed the health implications of exposure to mold. With most contaminants, he explained, there is an established "exposure value" to determine what can and can't make people sick. With mold, he said, there is no such level, because mold is considered an allergen. "Your susceptibility, from person to person, varies," he said.

Mold does not cause any disease, McGuire said, but can exacerbate conditions such as asthma and respiratory problems. "In a building evaluation, there's no level for us to compare to," he said. "It is focused on, is it present, are the conditions present?"

Rianna thanked Francine Santoro, Gribbin Elementary's principal, for making room in the building to host the pre-K classes, as well as others who helped in the process. "This has really been a working team effort to ensure that this is a smooth transition to the other building," Rianna said, adding, "I don't foresee moving the pre-K back [to Deasy]."

Rita Bianco, a Gribbin parent, expressed concern about the move, which means a loss of two specials classrooms at Gribbin. "Was it the best decision to move to Gribbin?" she asked.

Rianna responded that many things factored into the decision, including classroom space, the ages of other students in the building and the location of bathrooms. She said there was no room at the other elementary schools, and since some pre-K students continue on to Gribbin for kindergarten, the move will facilitate a smoother transition.

"We looked at usable space, and as it is a home base for some students," Rianna said of Gribbin, "we felt it was the best decision for a smooth transition."

Q&A with Glen Cove mayor candidates

Herald: What would you do to attract new businesses to Glen Cove?

Tenke: As part of our zoning code review, we are exploring the idea of expanding our downtown and using zoning changes to attract new businesses that are desirable in the city. In addition, mixed-use developments in the downtown are already making our downtown more vibrant. We will also work on beautification with new pedestrian walkways, curb cuts, landscaping, pergolas, and benches in our open air spaces in the recently renovated Village Square. We have been and are very responsive to the parking needs of our businesses. We believe a vehicle connection to the Brewster Street garage from School Street would allow easier access to the businesses and encourage people to visit them.

Panzenbeck: I would like to bring a family friendly recreational business or businesses to Glen Cove. I will do an inventory of properties available and reach out to business people on Long Island availing them of the opportunity to open a business here.

Our once-loved Glen Cove village has been greatly neglected. There are many empty storefronts and the facades are dull and dreary. It is time to put some effort into improving that which we already have, and energizing our downtown area. As methods of shopping have changed, people still have the desire to wander around, browse, and shop in their own hometown. Glen Cove offers nothing to these people or our visitors. The sidewalks are dirty and areas are strewn with litter, making it difficult for existing businesses to attract new customers.

We must make Glen Cove friendly to those wishing to become part of our downtown business family and streamline the process to open a new business. Red tape should not be a deterrent. When I am the mayor, I will welcome prospective businesses with the statement, "Welcome to Glen Cove, how can we help you?"

Herald: Why should people vote for you?

Tenke: People should vote for me because I have the experience needed to run the city. My administration is moving Glen Cove forward. We have taken on the task of remediating decades of neglect of city assets; at the parks, beaches, ballfields, and water infrastructure, to name a few. We have stabilized the city's finances, through prudent budgeting, consolidation of certain departments to remove redundant functions, and making services more accessible and efficient. We have strengthened our infrastructure by, for example, bringing two water wells back into service at Duck Pond Road and completely rebuilding the water well at Seaman Road. A full structural rebuild of Pryibil's pier is also underway. The tidal gates at East Island have been renovated. My administration has also made services more efficient and easily accessible to our residents, by adding a drop box outside City Hall for payments, adding an online payment functionality for school taxes when only city and county were online previously, creating a new city website with integration of TEXT-MYGOV to report issues and get forms, as well as streamlining building permits online.

Panzenbeck: I love Glen Cove; I am a passionate, dedicated citizen who desires to return to elected public service. Having served three terms on the Glen Cove City Council, I am aware of the issues of the city and the needs of our residents. My greatest concern regarding Glen Cove is the financial status of our city. Mayor Tenke inherited a surplus when he took office and at the close of business in 2021 was running a large deficit. When the majority of Mayor Tenke's administration voted to pierce the tax cap and then raise property taxes 7.32 percent, I realized Glen Cove is in trouble.

Constituents have never been given a straight answer about Crescent Beach or what the $100,000 grant received in the end of 2019 was used for. After asking during the spring of 2021, I was told Helixes would be used and later in the summer I was told that plants would be purchased and used to clear bacteria. Still the mayor says he is working on this.

The golf course is in poor condition. The driving range is in a state of collapse. Many golfers are unhappy with these conditions and speak to me regularly about this.

The Pryibil Beach Pier is always being closed for safety reasons and repaired temporarily. Let us choose one project and complete it once and for all.

CANDIDATE PROFILES, BALLOT REVIEW AND MORE INSIDE!

Blakeman, Curran vie for county executive

By JEFFREY BESSEN

jbessen@liherald.com

Democratic incumbent Laura Curran is running for her second four-term as county executive. Her Republican opponent is Town of Hempstead Councilman Bruce Blakeman. The Herald asked the candidates three pertinent questions to get their take on the issues.

Herald: Nassau is one of three counties that pay the highest average property taxes in the state. What is your plan to help reduce the tax burden?

Curran: As the hardworking families of Nassau know, you can't get far without a balanced budget. Before I took office, decades of wasteful corruption and reckless mismanagement plagued our county. I am proud that through dogged fiscal discipline, my administration has turned budget deficits into surpluses. Nassau families deserve to know their hard-earned money is being spent responsibly. That's why I devoted my first term to cleaning up the mess others left behind and bringing real accountability to government:

I delivered four balanced budgets and consecutive budget surpluses; secured Nassau's first bond upgrade in over a decade; held the line on property taxes and proposed a responsible $70 million tax reduction for 2022, and a $150 million tax reduction over the next four years.

As Nassau continues the economic recovery from Covid, I am also proud to say that we are in a position to give American Rescue Plan dollars back to the taxpayers. Our books are balanced, so I am giving $375 direct cash payments to more than 400,000 households. I have worked hard to earn the trust of Nassau taxpayers, and I will continue to pursue tax relief, like my tax cut, without sacrificing our future fiscal stability.

Blakeman: Laura Curran's reassessment is crushing families and seniors with higher property taxes. School tax bills are arriving at home this October, and just like last year, property taxes will soar for an overwhelming majority of homeowners because of Curran's reassessment. While your property taxes are going up, Laura Curran's taxes went down [decreased by $255].

For the majority of homeowners, Curran's tax hikes continue for three more years unless you stop her this Election Day. I believe it's wrong for Laura Curran to increase county property taxes to the highest level ever in Nassau's history while also generating millions in surplus funds.

As county executive, I will end Curran's reassessment and cut taxes. Government should never collect more than it needs to operate. My plan cuts property taxes by over $128 million – that's $58 million more than Laura Curran is willing to give back – and I'll pay for that tax

Bruce Blakeman

Hometown: Atlantic Beach

Professional Background: Attorney

Political experience: Town of Hempstead councilman; Nassau County legislator including serving as presiding officer; Port Authority commissioner cut by returning Nassau County's entire budget surplus to residents. I will continue to return budget surpluses each year while restricting new spending and reducing debt. It's time to put government on a serious diet, and it's time to really cut taxes.

Herald: The residential property assessment system still needs an overhaul. What would you do to make it beneficial for homeowners and the county?

Curran: Nassau's assessment system has been a mess for decades. Politician after politician kicked this can down the road, choosing what was politically convenient over what was right. I ran on a promise to finally address our broken assessment system, and I did just that. My administration took on a tough fight and had the political courage to implement a fair and accurate reassessment of the tax roll, which had been frozen for nearly a decade.

The accuracy of my administration's reassessment has been verified by Newsday, by the state and by independent experts. I have ensured residents have the opportunity to adapt to changes in assessment values by implementing my Taxpayer Protection Plan, which phases in any assessment correction over the next five years. I will also always protect residents' right to grieve their property assessment.

In my first term, I tackled the fiscal mismanagement that has plagued Nassau for decades, turning chronic deficits into surpluses. I took on reassessment when my predecessors lacked the political courage to do so. As a result, our assessment system is fairer and more accurate today than it has been in years.

Laura Curran

Age: 53

Hometown: Baldwin

Professional Background: Journalist, Herald Community Newspapers, New York Daily News and New York Post

Political experience: Baldwin Board of Education and Nassau County legislator 2014 to 2017

Blakeman: Laura Curran placed a huge financial burden on the backs of families and seniors, with an overwhelming majority of homeowners facing soaring school taxes in 2021 as a result of her reassessment.

Errors in Curran's assessment roll also resulted in multi-millionaires having their property tax bill erased. Mansions received tax bills for zero dollars in property taxes. While the reassessment was supposed to create equity, it did not. Neighboring homes built by the same developer pay different tax amounts regardless of being exactly the same.

It's clear that we need to scrap Curran's reassessment plan entirely and start fresh. As county executive, I will terminate Laura Curran's reassessment. Her phased-in tax hikes for the next three years will be immediately terminated by my administration. Instead, I will hire qualified professionals to run the Assessment Department and create a new, fair system while also cutting property taxes by over $120 million.

Herald: The Covid-19 pandemic remains an overarching problem. What would you do to help ensure that residents are healthy life can to return to "normal?"

Curran: I worked around the clock with communities and health officials during the toughest days of the pandemic to keep residents healthy and informed. I visited small businesses constantly to keep a finger on the pulse of our local economy. I advocated for safe re-openings when it made sense to support our long-term economic health.

We were open and transparent throughout the pandemic, pursuing an approach centered around education, outreach and accessibility. It is this approach that has earned us the ranking of highest vaccinated county in the state and second highest vaccinated among large counties nationally. Our 93.6 percent adult-vaccination-rate has allowed for a robust recovery – but we're not done.

As we recover, the county is reaching out to small business owners to get $10,000 in individual grants to those that need them. County mobile vaccination teams are visiting businesses directly and providing vaccinations to staff. Paramedics are taking vaccines to the homebound. We will provide $100 million in American Rescue Plan funds to some 400,000 households as $375 direct cash payments, which will help families buy school supplies, cover utility bills and stimulate our local economy as we continue to come back stronger.

Blakeman: Covid-19 will be around for years to come, and we can never return to the days of a closed economy. We must adapt by fully reopening government to serve the people and welcome those in need of services. We must continue to offer free testing, vaccines and booster shots to people who want them. Schools must never close again. Big box stores should never be allowed to stay open while small businesses are shuttered. Restaurants should be allowed to keep outdoor dining and continue their indoor operations. As county executive, I'll keep my pledge to do these things while also ensuring we have a transparent reporting process related to Covid cases.

OYSTER BAY TOWN SUPERVISOR

Joseph Saladino Incumbent

Party: Republican

Age: 59

Hometown: Massapequa

Political experience: Town Supervisor, State Assemblyman

On the issues:

Saladino says he would like to continue advocating for the environment and improving the town's finances. His economic development team has attracted new companies and hundreds of new jobs from Amazon, Geico and other large employers to the town. While working to draw in big business and create more jobs, Saladino believes revitalization of the downtown, along with increasing parking throughout the town and making improvements to traffic flow, is the key to build a strong sense of place and provide an environment more conducive to revitalization and job growth. He says downtown Oyster Bay has the potential to become a must-see destination for tourists, history buffs and many others.

Saladino has a vision for the Oyster Bay Hamlet which celebrates its rich history and has the potential to provide for greater recreational and accessible public space, which may be provided through the redevelopment of properties presently in use for industrial purposes along Oyster Bay Harbor, including environmental cleanup of the Commander Oil site and removal of the storage tanks.

Saladino is focused on improving water quality in Oyster Bay Harbor; and is proud of his work in the oyster sanctuary, drastically improving the amount of healthy oysters in the bay, thus filtering water at a much higher caliber.

Amanda Field Challenger

Party: Democrat

Age: 45

Hometown: Massapequa

Political experience: President of the Nassau Suffolk Water Commissioners Association, Plainview Commissioner of Water in 2016, 2019, present

On the issues:

Field, a former Plainview Water District commissioner, says she would focus on creating a fiscally-sound budget. She believes it is critical that the town has new financial oversight after many years of fiscal mismanagement and misuse of public funding, that the Town of Oyster Bay remains in the worst fiscal stress of all towns on Long Island for the last three years in a row, according to the New York State Fiscal Monitoring System and still has a bond rating that is just above junk bond status, costing taxpayers millions. Field plans to strengthen the town's bond rating by paying down debt instead of interest to lower taxes and will hire qualified experts. She plans to pay down principal debt to lower taxes and will seek more grant funding for programs for small businesses to use.

Another issue Field would like to address is trust in government. She points to the recent findings of the Nassau County District Attorney, that she says show the activities of the town board have been unethical and [created] a complete lack of trust, the most vital aspect of any government. Field believes that given this behavior, there should be an immediate independent audit and reconstitution of the Town Ethics Board and subsequently a fair and balanced ethics investigation into the conduct of the town board.

Donnelly, Kaminsky slug it out for D.A.

By JIM BERNSTEIN

jbernstein@liherald.com

The contest for Nassau County district attorney has been the most bitterly fought off all races this election season, with State Sen. Todd Kaminsky, the Democrat, and Anne Donnelly, the Republican, trading a slew of bighting accusations against each other, mostly centering on who is most responsible for setting prisoners free on the street to commit other crimes.

The accusations stem from Donnelly's attempts to paint Kaminsky as the legislator who wrote the state's Bail Reform Law, which gives and prohibits judges' discretion to assign bail in many felony and certain non-felony cases. Kaminsky voted for the bill, but did not write it.

Although the State Legislature amended the law in April 2020 to include a greater number of crimes for which bail could be assigned, the issue continues to dominate the campaign, and the ads continue to run on local TV stations. Donnelly points to her 30 years of working as a prosecutor in the Nassau D.A.'s office, heading different bureaus. Kaminsky notes that he served as a prosecutor in the U.S. attorney's office in Manhattan.

Herald: Nassau County has a growing immigrant population that often does not trust law enforcement. How would you improve that relationship?

Kaminsky: As district attorney, my office will have information available in every language, as well as community liaisons who do outreach in every part of Nassau County. And let me be clear: I will have a zero tolerance for hate crimes as district attorney. Hate crimes against the immigrant population have risen at troubling rates recently, and the trend must be addressed aggressively. It doesn't matter if you're Jewish, LGBTQ, Asian, Black or Muslim: You deserve to feel safe walking down the streets of your neighborhood. As district attorney, I will take a tough and aggressive approach to hold racists and other hate-mongers accountable in our community by instituting a zero-tolerance policy. I am proud to have the support of law enforcement, including the New York State Troopers and local Police Benevolent Association. They know my record. They know I will fight to protect all Long Islanders. Rebuilding trust doesn't just mean the prosecutor's office has to have a better relationship with communities—it also means trust in government and institutions overall has to improve by prosecuting corruption. Corruption has infested every level of government here in Nassau County. As a federal prosecutor, I worked on the highest-level corruption cases, successfully prosecuting both Democrats and Republicans who violated the public trust. Corruption will have no place to hide when I am district attorney.

Donnelly: I am committed to serving all residents of Nassau County in a fair and respectful manner. Part of that commitment consists of helping to ensure that people who have emigrated from other countries into the United States are welcomed into the communities in which they have chosen to settle. Outreach programs that feature governmental liaisons who speak the primary languages of members of our diverse community should be at the top of the priority list. Educational initiatives and literature in various languages are also needed to welcome residents and build trust. I am prepared to play a leadership role in this area.

Herald: Gangs are growing in Nassau and Suffolk. Aside from prosecuting those apprehended, what else can the district attorney's office do to stem the violence?

Kaminsky: As a federal prosecutor, I successfully took down gang leaders and the gun and drug traffickers who supplied them, cleaning up our streets and keeping dangerous weapons out of criminals' hands. Gang violence is a serious threat to our communities, and combating them will be a top priority of my office. Some of the worst gangs are international in scope and go beyond our state and even our country's borders. This means that having strong partnerships with federal law enforcement agencies is critical. As someone who worked as a federal prosecutor, I will coordinate with our federal partners closely to root out gang violence. Importantly, when it comes to gangs, we also cannot keep treating the symptoms—we must treat the underlying disease. We must establish trust in communities with gang violence and work with local organizations to identify bad actors and offer alternatives to crime. My office will be constantly working with schools and after-school programs to educate young people about the dangers of gangs, and investing in these programs so our young people are learning, partaking in constructive activities and do not choose to walk the path that gangs offer them.

Donnelly: Collaborating with schools, as well as municipal governments and non-for-profits, we can provide more opportunities for enrichment and socialization programs as viable alternatives to gangs. Safe activities and good mentors are important components of attractive and positive choices for young people. I plan to explore the use of asset forfeiture funds to further programs of this type.

Herald: Our jails are often overcrowded and riddled with Covid-19 cases. What would you recommend to ease these conditions?

Kaminsky: The best way to address overcrowding, deliver swift justice for victims and lower crime is to fully fund our court system. There are federal funds available through the Department of Justice to help—and I will push the state to add more dollars to ensure justice is served. I will also make sure that programs with proven track records to turn around criminal behavior — especially for substance abuse — are funded to keep Nassau safe and to reduce the recidivism that floods our courts with cases.

Donnelly: The Nassau County jail is not overcrowded, and I am intimately aware of this fact, having served as the district attorney's liaison to the correctional center until recently. Indeed, the inmate population is at its lowest level in the past 25 years. What's more, the facility did an excellent job in containing and treating Covid. Unfortunately, the "cashless bail" law that was co-authored by my opponent has greatly limited the ability of judges to make incarceration decisions for individuals based upon the pertinent facts in each case.

COUNTY LEGISLATURE DISTRICT 11

Delia DeRiggi-Whitton Incumbent

Party: Democratic

Age: 53

Hometown: Glen Cove

Professional experience:

Four terms as county legislator, former Glen Cove City councilwoman

On the issues:

Delia DeRiggi-Whitton said that she believes a multi-pronged approach is needed to reverse the "brain drain" that continues to plague the region, and that it is essential to reduce the cost of living. She supports the county executive's proposal to reduce taxes by a total of $150 million over the next four years. She has also joined forces with a coalition of advocates and elected officials to free North Shore water customers from the exorbitant fees charged by New York American Water.

She said that smart investments in infrastructure are essential for community-driven development in order to address the affordable housing issue. She helped secure the inclusion of tens of millions of dollars of investment in the county's capital plan focused on expanding and modernizing sewer infrastructure in Glen Cove and Sea Cliff and fought to fulfill an aggressive road-repaving agenda for county roads in the district.

However, she said, the aquifer and drinking water must be protected from contamination. Recently, the county directed millions of dollars in American Rescue Plan funding toward the S.E.P.T.I.C. program, which provides up to $20,000 in grants to property owners seeking to replace outdated or failing septic systems with state-of-the-art technology that greatly reduce dangerous nitrogen pollution.

She has been an advocate for local businesses and helped secure approval for dedicating funds to recovery grants for small businesses, low-interest loan programs, and other forms of crucial support to small businesses.

Meagan McCarty Challenger

Party: Republican

Age: 40

Hometown: Port Washington

Professional experience:

Legislative aide, secretary-treasurer manufacturing business, mentor at Empowering Young Professionals of Long Island

On the issues:

Meagan McCarty said that, if elected, her first act would be to advocate for an elected assessor. She believes the current reassessment will cause taxes to skyrocket within the next five years, resulting in increased rents, the closure of businesses and people moving away. She said having an elected assessor who lived in the county and who would be held accountable and transparent could help residents recover, and then focus on revitalizing downtown areas. She said she would propose a Quality of Life Task Force to help ensure public safety.

To address the housing crisis, she said would seek to advocate for allocating some of the state and federal emergency monies that Nassau will receive to bridge the gap between what long-term tenants have been paying and what the landlords want to raise the rent to for an adjustment period. She also believes that programs available for first-time homebuyers need to be communicated more effectively.

McCarty said she would like to see Nassau be more business-friendly, and would work to incentivize companies that have existing parental leave/work from home/childcare programs and offer flexibility for families. She said she like to establish a relationship with business owners by holding quarterly small-business roundtables and seeking feedback from business owners, as well as their staffs and unions. She would bring their concerns to the Legislature and in turn, would disseminate Nassau County information to them in order to work together.

Includes Baxter Estates, Flower Hill, Glen Cove, Glenwood Landing, North Manorhaven, Port Washington, Roslyn, Roslyn Harbor, Sands Point, Sea Cliff.

Career: County clerk, former nurse

Political experience: Nassau County clerk, 2006-present; New York state assemblywoman, 1998-2005; trustee and deputy mayor, Village of East Williston, 1991-98

On the issues:

Maureen O'Connell said her goal is to continue to expand on the many steps taken to improve the office since she was first elected in 2005, and to ensure that it operates effectively and efficiently. She and her staff worked with military veterans to protect them from data breaches through the years. She said she has also found ways to get the community involved by extending office hours, creating outreach programs and educating constituents on what the clerk's office provides.

have worked to process more than a million backlogged records and implemented an electronic filing process that converts paper land records to a digital format to ensure they remain safe for the future, and she said she hoped to continue to serve residents of all ages in the community by helping them to learn about the benefits of the clerk's office.

Justin Brown

Challenger

Party: Democratic

Age: 30

Hometown: Baldwin

Career: Health-care administrator

Political experience: Served on the Uniondale Board of Education for the past three years

On the issues:

Justin Brown said he has long been passionate about helping people and being an advocate for residents. He intends to make the office more innovative with technology so that residents could receive documents and enjoy greater accessibility without having to visit the office in person and implementing a modern system that his office would have full control over online.

Brown said he would also ensure that the clerk's office could engage with the communities by providing more education and collaborating with key stakeholders in all towns to create a dialogue so that residents can take full advantage of the county clerk's resources and benefits.

NASSAU COUNTY COMPTROLLER

Brian Cronin

Party: Democratic

Age: 40

Professional experience: Corporate attorney, business litigator

Political career: Second-time candidate

On the issues:

Brian Cronin said the Nassau County comptroller's office must lean into the "new normal" and embrace modernization, saying that the office still uses technology from the middle of the 20th century and is thus overdue for an upgrade. In doing so, it would allow the office to adapt more effectively not only to the "new normal" but also to any hurdles to come.

Nassau has become a "hub of diversity," he said. As comptroller, he would "represent the entire county" and strive to have voices from every community heard. Many new businesses in Nassau are minority-owned, he said, and he would work to ensure that county contracts were evenly distributed among business owners.

The comptroller, he said, is the "taxpayers' watchdog responsible for fighting waste and fraud," adding that the office will take on "increasing importance given the uncertainty of the post-Covid economy."

He would recruit "high-level professionals from the private sector to join our team so that we have the skilled team required to address these unprecedented times," adding, "Taxpayers must have confidence that this team is not politicized. Like most taxpayers, I am sick and tired of divisive politics. This is why I have committed to hiring a moderate Republican as my top deputy. Such bipartisanship has become far too rare in today's politics."

Elaine Phillips

Party: Republican

Age: 61

Professional experience: Financial adviser, vice president of mortgage finance and institutional sales

Political career: Formerly state senator, 7th District, mayor of Village of Flower Hill

On the issues:

As Nassau County comptroller, Elaine Phillips said she would play a crucial role in "objectively identifying those governmental agencies whose performance is lagging and making recommendations to address deficiencies." An example of a lack of adequate management and adaption has been seen within the Department of Consumer Affairs, she said. The county administration, she said, should "follow the Town of Hempstead's successful practice of issuing permits and licenses off campus through the use of mobile trailers. Strict safeguards have been employed to meet the needs of taxpayers."

While in the private sector at Goldman Sachs, she said, she oversaw the diversity efforts, and while she was a New York state senator, she sponsored multiple educational and outreach forums on diversity. As Nassau comptroller, she said she would work to ensure diversity, equity and inclusion in the workplace, and educate and promote solutions to ensure equal rights for all. At the same time, she would undertake performance audits of all county departments to ascertain whether they are meeting diversity, equity and inclusion metrics.

As comptroller, she said, she would serve as the "taxpayer's watchdog." "Taxes and spending need to be controlled in Nassau County," she said. "I have the background and expertise to implement audits to weed out waste, abuse and fraud, saving taxpayers money. Further, I will audit the recent property tax reassessment to determine the extent to which mistakes [were] made."

NASSAU COUNTY EXECUTIVE

Laura Curran Incumbent

Party: Democratic

Age: 53

Hometown: Baldwin

Political experience: Baldwin Board of Education and Nassau County legislator 2014 to 2017

Career: Journalist, Herald Community Newspapers, New York Daily News and New York Post

On the issues:

Laura Curran is running for a second four-term. Curran noted her four balanced budgets and consecutive budget surpluses, the county's first upgrade in a decade, no tax increases and a $70 million tax cut for 2022. She pointed to the Nassau Boost program for helping small businesses and a $375 payment open to 400,000 households, using the federal money, to foster economic recovery from Covid.

She said she implemented a fair and accurate reassessment of the tax rolls, which had been frozen for nearly a decade and ensured residents have the opportunity to adapt to changes in assessment values by implementing a Taxpayer Protection Plan, which phases in any assessment correction over the next five years.

Believing that her administration has proven to be fiscally responsible, delivering the first bond upgrade for the county in 10 years, Curran aims to end the Nassau Interim Finance Authority.

During Covid, Curran said she advocated for safe reopenings when it made sense to support long-term economic health. She highlighted the county's nearly 94 percent adult-vaccination rate and the work of county mobile vaccination teams that visit businesses.

Believing that Nassau University Medical Center is a "safety-net hospital," Curran said she has asked the federal government for $200 million to upgrade NUMC's infrastructure and build housing for military veterans.

Bruce Blakeman Challenger

Party: Republican

Age: 66

Hometown: Atlantic Beach

Political experience: Town of Hempstead councilman; Nassau County legislator, including serving as presiding officer; Port Authority commissioner

Career: Attorney

On the issues:

Bruce Blakeman said he thinks Curran's reassessment is hurting families and seniors. He said that his plan would be to cut taxes by more than $128 million using the budget surplus. Blakeman said he would scrap Curran's reassessment plan and start fresh. Pointing to the errors made in past reassessments, he said he would put together a panel of top experts to investigate what was done, hire qualified professionals to run the Assessment Department and create a new and fair system.

Calling the first iteration of the bail reform bill "a disaster" that contributed to an increase in crime, Blakeman wants more training, better equipment and better educated officers for the Nassau Police Department. Saying Covid-19 will be around for the years to come, Blakeman said free testing, vaccines and booster shots should continue to be offered, restaurants should be allowed to keep outdoor dining while continuing to seat patrons indoors and maintain a transparent Covid-19 reporting process.

He said he would keep the Nassau University Medical Center open and thinks that specialties such as cardiac surgery should be introduced to fix what he called the hospital's "revenue problem."

Dawn Riley inducted into the National Sailing Hall of Fame

Executive Director of Oakcliff Sailing Dawn Riley, was inducted into the National Sailing Hall of Fame in Newport, Rhode Island on Oct. 16.

Before taking on her position at Oakcliff, a non-profit sailing center in Oyster Bay, Riley made waves in the sailing world as the first woman ever to manage an America's Cup team and the first American to sail in three America's Cups and two Whitbread Round the World (now The Ocean Race) races.

"It is an honor to be inducted into the Hall of Fame in its most diverse class yet," Riley said. "I see a future with equality and diversity at all levels of the sport, and this is a great indicator of how far we have come."

During her first 'Round the World Race, Riley was a pivotal member of Maiden, the first all-female team to complete the event. The team was profiled in the 2018 feature documentary of the same name.

Throughout her time sailing, Riley has also been an advocate for women in sailing and women in sports. She served on the board of the Women's Sports Foundation, a non-profit aimed at getting women and girls involved in all levels of sports, as the president from 2004 to 2006. She takes this attitude to Oakcliff, where she encourages female trainees to reach the highest levels of the sport.

"In my opinion, the last frontier for women in sailing is in decision-making roles. Women in leadership with decision-making powers is where we need to go," Riley said. "The next step is for more women to own their own boats."

Dear Happy Wedding Guest,

The book you are searching for is Richard Powers' "Bewilderment," and a wonderful recommendation it is. Set in the near future, the story follows a father and son on an amazing journey. The father, Theo Byrne, is an astrobiologist, recently widowed; the son is Robin, a third grader who is grieving his mother's death. Robin is a sensitive, gifted artist and lover of nature, who has difficulty controlling his anger, especially towards classmates. When school authorities suggest medication, Theo refuses and consults with a friend who suggests an experimental neurofeedback therapy. Robin's parents had earlier been part of an experiment that mapped their emotions in great detail. Soon we realize Robin is being linked to his mother's brain patterns.

The story line is interspersed with descriptions of planets throughout the galaxy where life may have existed in ways similar to ours — all with differing outcomes. What the outcome of life on planet earth will be is the underlying theme of this novel. A challenging but rewarding read. Highly recommended!

Re-elect Laura Curran Nassau County executive

Just over two years into Laura Curran's first term as county executive, the world was roiled by the coronavirus pandemic. Its continuing impact on life might have consumed lesser elected officials, but not Curran.

The county executive, a Democrat, took control and, following the fact-based advice of health officials, she worked to keep residents informed through her Covid-related news briefings that took place in many communities across the county.

In large part because of her outstanding pandemic response, the Herald enthusiastically endorses Curran for a second term as county executive. Through a phased-in reopening of businesses, houses of worship and schools, Curran and her administration kept a keen eye on the infection numbers and aimed to ensure the health and safety of everyone in the county. When vaccinations were rolled out, Nassau officials from Curran on down doubled down on the need to vaccinate. As of press time, the county had a 94 percent vaccination rate for adults with at least one dose — the highest in New York state.

Curran used federal money to fund the Boost Nassau program, which began last summer to offer grants to businesses. Also, some 400,000 county households will receive a one-time $375 direct payment for residents to use as they wish, but which Curran is encouraging people to spend locally to help support pandemic-ravaged businesses.

Her Republican challenger, Hempstead Town Councilman Bruce Blakeman, has been part of the town's battle against Covid-19, which has included a mobile vaccination unit and an array of programs and services that have assisted residents through the pandemic, all paid for with federal dollars. We also commend Blakeman for his role at the town level in easing restrictions for restaurants to create outdoor dining spaces to help them survive the pandemic.

Financially, Curran has navigated the county through the past two budgets, 2019 and 2020, and has delivered balanced fiscal plans but has not raised county taxes since being elected. The current budget battle is still playing out. Her proposed $70 million tax cut appears sounder than the Republican plan for a $120 million cut that Blakeman has campaigned on.

A recurring issue that vexes residents is the way homes are assessed across the county. Reassessment has long been thought of as the third rail of Nassau politics, but Curran showed courage in taking on an issue that made so many other elected leaders quiver. The reassessment process was imperfect, with thousands of mistakes. The system is, however, considerably more accurate now for hundreds of thousands of homes.

Blakeman, for all his years in public office, which include two stints as a town councilman and his time in the legislature, where he served as presiding officer, was unable to offer concrete suggestions for fixing the reassessment. The best plan he offered was to take a look under the hood, so to speak, assemble a panel of experts and appoint a special master to investigate what was done and how it could be repaired. When running for the county's highest office, a candidate needs to offer more than that. During the turmoil of the past couple of years, Curran, in partnership with Nassau County Police Commissioner Patrick Ryder, kept a lid on crime in the county. The work was recognized nationally by U.S. News & World Report, which named Nassau the safest community in the country based on several metrics. Both candidates support upgrading Nassau University Medical Center in East Meadow, and Curran said that she has asked the federal government for $200 million to enhance the hospital's infrastructure. Blakeman said he would aim to increase its revenue by focusing on specialties such as cardiac surgery. Both are good ideas, especially if the federal money is received.

We believe Curran's outstanding work in protecting her constituents throughout her first term — particularly during the pandemic — coupled with her willingness and ability to take on critical issues like reassessment have earned her another four years. We urge voters to re-elect her Tuesday.

Vote for O'Connell for county clerk

Though we found both candidates in the Nassau County clerk race to be strong, we see no reason to unseat Maureen O'Connell after all she has accomplished in the past 16 years.

O'Connell, a registered nurse from East Williston and a Republican, was first elected clerk in 2005, and re-elected in 2009, 2013 and 2017 — for good reason. She has taken many steps in that time to improve the office and ensure that it operates effectively and efficiently. She and her staff have worked to process more than a million backlogged records, and implemented an electronic filing process that converts paper land records to a digital format to ensure they remain safe in the future.

O'Connell and her staff also implemented security measures to protect residents from scams and identity theft, and have worked with military veterans to protect them from data breaches. She has extended office hours and created outreach programs to educate constituents about services the clerk's office provides.

Her opponent, Justin Brown, a Democrat from Baldwin, offered many solid ideas for improving the office moving forward, and as a health care administrator for Sloan Kettering Memorial Cancer Center and a former Uniondale Board of Education trustee, he has shown proven leadership skills.

Brown's ideas include making the clerk's office more technologically efficient, so residents can receive documents without having to appear in person; implementing a modern, user-friendly online system that the office would have full control over; and offering greater community outreach to residents and constituents to show them how to maximize the office's services. Brown is just 30 years old, we believe there is a strong future in politics for him, and encourage him to seek elected office in years to come.

For now, though, O'Connell has the county clerk's office humming along, and has instituted a great deal of positive change there in the past 16 years. We encourage voters to re-elect her.

Cast your ballot for Delia DeRiggi-Whitton in L.D. 11

Since 2012, Delia DeRiggi-Whitton has actively taken on causes in Nassau County's 11th Legislative District, and has made important changes. One of her priorities has been to protect the Long Island Sound, and she has done that by prioritizing the installation of a sewer line in Sea Cliff, advocating for it to be connected to the county's sewer system and helping to transition more residents off cesspools.

DeRiggi-Whitton advocated for the county to direct millions of dollars in American Rescue Plan funding toward the SEPTIC program, which provides $20,000 grants to property owners seeking to replace outdated or failing septic systems with state-of-the-art models that greatly reduce nitrogen pollution.

In part because of her environmental advocacy, we are endorsing DeRiggi-Whitton, a Democrat.

Throughout the pandemic, DeRiggi-Whitton has also been a visible leader, advocating for dedicating tens of millions of dollars to recovery grants for small businesses, low-interest loan programs and other forms of support for small businesses. She went door to door to inform small business owners about the Restaurant Recovery Grant and the Boost

Nassau program, and helped them apply for assistance. This has helped businesses in Glen Cove and Sea Cliff remain open despite the difficult economy.

She also made determining the source of pollution at Sea Cliff's Crescent Beach a priority, and though the beach has remained closed for swimming since 2009, the source has been identified, and the responsible homeowners are in the process of securing advanced filtering systems.

While DeRiggi-Whitton's opponent, Meagan McCarty, has some good ideas and appears to truly care about finding ways to make North Shore communities more affordable, we believe that DeRiggi-Whitton's track record makes her the best candidate for the job. Throughout her five terms as a legislator, she has built relationships on both sides of the aisle, and while she has done much for her hometown of Glen Cove, she also pushes for legislation that has benefits countywide, and she gets the job done.

Re-elect DeRiggi-Whitton next Tuesday.

Re-elect Glen Cove Mayor Tim Tenke

After finding ways to cut expenses and raise new sources of revenue, Tim Tenke deserves to be re-elected for two more years as mayor of Glen Cove.

Over the past two years, Tenke has kept the city running smoothly, and we believe he has been able to prove his capability as leader of the city, bring the city through the pandemic on a stronger footing than when he started. Although homeowners did see a tax hike last year, the increase, Tenke said, was necessary to prevent service cuts. Without that increase, he, said, he would have been forced to lay off 40 employees, close the senior center, eliminate the recreation and camp programs, and reduce garbage pick-up to once a week. Instead, he made the tough call of raising taxes 7.32 percent, yet has managed to keep the budget down for 2022, with a zero percent tax increase, and will add jobs and slight pay raises as well.

This year, he implemented two new revenue streams for the budget, a mortgage registry program and a rental registry program, which will offset expenses. Additionally, his administration has implemented a five-year plan for capital borrowing. The city is expected to have a modest surplus at the end of this year, thanks to this fiscal responsibility.

His opponent, Pam Panzenbeck, was engaged as a city councilwoman, and has continued to remain active and involved in the community. She clearly cares about Glen Cove and would be a strong leader for residents if elected. One thing she said she would focus on is finding opportunities to bring new business to the downtown area, and would also prioritize making the downtown cleaner and more attractive. With new residents moving in, having fewer empty storefronts would be a positive thing for the city. We believe she would be open to new ideas and would take residents' concerns to heart.

Still, noticeable improvements have been made over the past year to the downtown and new businesses have opened, even during the pandemic. Tenke has plans for pedestrian walkways and is exploring zoning changes to attract new business to make the downtown more vibrant. We believe he has set the city on a good path overall, and would like to see what he can continue to do. We throw our support behind Tenke and believe voters should, too.

Vote for people over party

To the Editor:

There has been an unsettling amount of separation in our country in regard to national politics. While the Republicans want one thing that may be far to the right, the Democrats have ideas about things equally far to the left. The friction and lack of compromise must leave our Founding Fathers turning in their graves.

Whether your political leanings are one way or the other, who you vote for in Glen Cove should be about the person and not the national party.

Look at what the candidates have done and what they stand for. When I was on the village council of Flower Hill, elections there, like all villages, were held in a different month. There was no column for Republicans or Democrats, and it took the national politics out of the election. I ran on the Flower Hill Party, while my opponent ran on the People's Party of Flower Hill. It wasn't about Democrats versus Republicans.

While I'm an Independent, I am throwing my support to Pam Panzenbeck for mayor, based not only on her many years of experience on the council, but also because of the many organizations she has volunteered for or has been on the board over the past 25 years. She has been looking after Glen Cove so long that being mayor would only be the next natural progression.

As for the council candidates, I plan on voting for the person, and not their party. See you at the election booth.

For Nassau County district attorney, Todd Kaminsky

The most hard-fought, nastiest race in Nassau County this election season has been the contest for district attorney, pitting Democratic State Sen. Todd Kaminsky against Republican Anne Donnelly. Both have run scathing television ads, with Donnelly accusing Kaminsky of freeing prisoners under the state's new bail-reform law, and Kaminsky accusing Donnelly of botching a murder trial leading to a mistrial.

But the bad-mouthing began with the Republicans, who see the D.A.'s race as their best chance to capture a powerful seat in county government and were first to air the ads. In our view, Kaminsky is the better candidate.

The State Legislature passed a bail-reform measure in 2019, restricting the use of cash bail and pre-trial detention in misdemeanor and nonviolent felony cases. It also gave judges discretion to assign bail in almost all violent felony cases and certain nonviolent cases, such as witness tampering. The law was amended in 2020, and Kaminsky voted for the amended law, which gives judges bail discretion in a greater number of cases.

In her TV ads, Donnelly accused Kaminsky of writing the bail-reform bill. That was untrue. Kaminsky voted for it, but was not its author.

This issue was central to the campaign for D.A. That's a shame, because there are other issues that demanded the attention of both candidates. Kaminsky, while having to defend himself against the false allegations, did bring up other matters, including the need for stronger gun control legislation and a woman's right to choose in the growing debate over abortion.

Kaminsky has proven himself to be an able state senator, particularly when it comes to the environment, an issue of great importance to his South Shore constituency. He is chairman of the Senate Environmental Conservation Committee, and authored the Climate Leadership and Community Protection Act, an aggressive climate-change program that puts New York on the road to carbon neutrality and a green-energy economy. He has been in the forefront of a fight to regulate carcinogenic contaminants in Long Island's water supply, and has passed legislation banning products containing toxic substances. He secured billions of dollars for clean-water systems.

While Kaminsky's environmental record is enviable, the question is, does this make a good prosecutor? We believe his passion for issues demonstrates his hunger to do good work through public office, and his ability to work effectively as an elected leader. Kaminsky has pledged to use the bully pulpit of the D.A.'s office to take on big-picture law-enforcement issues, and he no doubt can.

Donnelly argues that she is the law-enforcement professional. She has been a prosecutor in the county D.A.'s office for 32 years, and served as deputy chief of the Organized Crime and Rackets Bureau. Certainly, such service is admirable.

Kaminsky, who became a state senator in 2016, worked as an assistant district attorney in the Queens D.A.'s office before joining the U.S. attorney's office for the Eastern District of New York. He prosecuted elected officials who used taxpayer dollars to support their lifestyles, including former State Senate Majority Leader Pedro Espada Jr., State Assemblyman Jimmy Meng and Michael Grimm, a member of Congress.

Kaminsky offered some fresh ideas to improve the D.A.'s office. He promised to crack down on hate crimes at a time when anti-Semitic and racist acts are rising in New York. He also promised to root out corruption in Nassau, whether among Republicans or Democrats, and swore to improve trust in government at a time when that is sorely lacking.

Kaminsky has also vowed to work harder with federal law-enforcement officials to defeat the rise of gang violence in Nassau. But he said he wanted to go deeper, and work with communities and schools dealing with such problems.

Our view is that Kaminsky, given his background in both government and the U.S. attorney's office, is an excellent choice for Nassau district attorney. We give him our wholehearted support, and voters should, too.

Ryan Cronin is choice for county comptroller

In the race to fill Nassau County Comptroller Jack Schnirman's post between Democrat Ryan Cronin and Republican Elaine Phillips, our choice to support Cronin boils down to his holistic plan to provide increased accountability across party lines and modernize the office of the comptroller.

Keeping in mind the controversy swirling around the office with the current comptroller because Schnirman overpaid tens of thousands as Long Beach city manager, Cronin, 40, said one of his goals is to gain back the trust of his constituents.

Indeed, Cronin, a Garden City resident, has a track record as a corporate attorney who has dealt with complex contract disputes and fraud claims, and of advocating for those who have been taken advantage of. Cronin defended more than a dozen victims of the Bernie Madoff Ponzi scheme and took on a global corporation to force the recall of a defective product that caused the injury and death of infants—in other words, watchdog-caliber experience.

Cronin raised a blueprint for the office's priorities, both short- and long-term. As an immediate concern was the vendor payment process, which is plagued by chronically delayed payments that lead to extra costs for all parties involved. He also wants to proactively address Nassau's antiquated technology, which will not comply with coming accounting standards within the next three to five years.

Cronin also prioritizes building a bipartisan office, already pledging to appoint a Republican as his top deputy. Aligned with his apolitical view of how the office should run, he has critiqued County Executive Laura Curran for not collaborating with the county Republicans on jettisoning county fees and for perpetuating the structural gap between recurring county revenues and expenses.

HERALD Endorsement

Ryan Cronin

Unlike Cronin, who lost two State Senate races against Republican incumbent Kemp Hannon, Phillips has already had a political career. As Flower Hill mayor, she stabilized the village's finances and incentivized green projects, a tenure that attests to her familiarity with local bureaucracy and financial savvy. However, it is her time as the 7th District senator that has raised some red flags regarding her leadership and partisanship. As the head of the Ethics Committee, the body held few meetings, which resulted in no material progress.

Phillips has strong professional financial experience as a financial analyst for Goldman Sachs and JP Morgan, where she juggled the competing needs of her clients and her employers; however, she did not provide specific new ideas for the office of comptroller.

Because of Cronin's independence from his party, his professional experience going after the big guys and his specific plan of action, the Herald supports Cronin. Vote for him on Election Day.

My Grandmother and voting

To the Editor:

Some people may have noticed that I often share stories about my grandmother. I do this in general, and when campaigning. In fact, some years back, I wrote a letter to the Herald about my grandmother. All of us are shaped and influenced by the experiences of our youth, and many elected officials and candidates share anecdotes about their families. Including primaries and general elections, this is my fifth election cycle. As I've spoken to people, I have often shared stories of my grandmother; we were very close.

My grandmother, Annie Gaitley, was a significant influence on me, and I'm grateful for that. She was a smart and savvy businesswoman, she worked as an accountant with the railroad, and she was a businesswoman long before she married in her early 30s. I remember, as a teenager, driving her to the polls. She was bent with arthritis and walked with a cane, and just getting in and out of the car was challenging, but she never missed an opportunity to vote. I later realized that with the passage of the 19th Amendment in 1920, this smart, creative woman didn't have the right to vote until she was 32 years old!

She is often my inspiration as I encourage voters to engage in the process. I've had so many people mention how much they appreciate my sharing her story. Annie Gaitley never took her vote for granted, and we all should value and exercise this important constitutional right. Yes, I'm hopeful that you'll vote for me, but most important, please be sure you get to the polls.

Vote for Gaitley

To the Editor:

I am writing to tell the people of Glen

Cove why they should vote for Gaitley Stevenson-Matthews to continue to represent them on the City Council. I know that Gaitley has accomplished many things as a councilman, and has been a tireless booster for Glen Cove's people and the many businesses in our community. But what I want to talk about is Gaitley's character. If we have learned anything from recent history, it is that the character of our representatives counts at least as much as the positions they take.

Many people know that Gaitley is a founding member of NOSH, our local food pantry that delivers groceries weekly to 500 Glen Cove families. Many of you also know that he is one of the drivers, delivering food to 18 families on his lunch hour every week. As such, his job is to pick up the packed food and drive it to the homes of those he serves.

Too many of us know that NOSH's headquarters in the VFW burned, destroying refrigerators and food destined for those in our community who are food insecure. Gaitley did not allow this disaster to stop him from making sure those whom he served had their weekly food delivery. In addition to his usual rounds of local people and businesses, council business and his campaign, he found donations, packed them up and make sure deliveries were made to those families — and he did not waiver in that commitment. It wasn't too hard for him, and he didn't allow any obstacles to stop him. His word was his pledge; he fulfilled his promise, no matter how difficult.

That is character. That is the kind of person I want to represent me. That is one of the many reasons why I support Gaitley, and you should, too.

GO FORWARD! Not back.

Two years ago our Glen Cove Community by a significant majority vote, elected Mayor Tim Tenke and the Tenke Team, to run our City government.

I write this letter to ask you to support them again on November 2, 2021.

Why?

In the past two years Glen Cove has gone through a pandemic; flooding; storms; protests etc. And guess what? We as a Community are still standing. Not only are we still standing, but we have been Going Forward! Not back. Mayor Tenke and his Team and our City government, which they have led these past two years, are significantly responsible

Let me give one example. My wife and I have two sons who love baseball. So, three and a half years ago I went in front of the Republican controlled City Council and offered to donate $5,000.00 in an effort to rehab the baseball batting cages at City Stadium. They were lying unused and in disrepair for years. The Republican Council members, many of whom are running this year, came up to me after and said, "Whatever we can do to help, we will". I followed up with several mailings and emails with them. I got zero as a response. Can you imagine? Here I am willing to donate money and work to do something positive for our Kids and got no response.

Fast forward to when Mayor Tenke and his Team were elected. They not only removed the bureaucratic red tape to get those cages done, but they also helped create the Glen Cove Boys and Girls Baseball and Softball Commission. With their assistance the Commission ran a successful Glen Cove Baseball and Softball season in 2021. And Tenke and his Team brought back the Mayor's Trophy Tournament; bringing outside teams and visitors to our Community who eat and shop at Glen Cove businesses.

In addition, Mayor Tenke has arranged for a very generous benefactor to donate a number of multi purpose turf fields to City Stadium. That turf sits at City Stadium ready to be installed. I realize this is just a small story about my specific experience with Mayor Tenke and his Team. But it speaks volumes as to what can be accomplished for our citizens; residents and our Kids. It says "YES WE CAN" as opposed to No We Can't. Let's "GO FORWARD", not back.

The present candidates for the Republicans are the same faces from the No We Can't years.

I urge you to GO FORWARD with Mayor Tim Tenke and his Team! Not back.
