Keep flexibility in your retirement income plan

Planning for retirement seem intimidating can and is often filled with ambivalence.

On the one hand, we fantasize about how great it would be to have a schedule filled just with our own personal activities, not having to report to work anymore. On the other hand, it's often scary to think about a life without the paycheck we've received and relied upon for our entire adult lives.

Fewer and fewer people are retiring with a guaranteed pension, and they need to rely on their own personal retirement accounts and savings to pay bills and lead the lifestyle they want.

Structuring income from your nest egg for the retirement chapter of your life can feel like a daunting task. I ask every client two crucial new questions: "What is the most important thing I can help you with?" and "What is your biggest fear?"

When facing retirement, the answers are consistently a variation of two answers: "I would like a comfortable retirement" and "I don't want to run out of money' due to a significant market loss or spending too much too soon.

Some even say they'd like me to help them so that they spend their last dollar > on their last day. Wouldn't that be great?

There are few absolutes that apply to everyone in retirement planning because every situation is different. One of those absolutes is to maintain a level of flexibility in your retirement accounts.

Diversification is important not only in vour investments but also in your sources of retirement income. You may choose an annuity for guaranteed income.

General Remodeling

While the guarantee may be great, the flexibility may be limiting. The contract likely includes surrender charges for taking lump sums of money out (usually in excess of 10%) within the first several years, and the guarantee either changes or goes away if excess money is withdrawn.

These rules are not necessarily bad as long as you fully understand and build your strategy around them. Pair that with one or more accounts in your strategy that have full liquidity so that money is accessible in lump sums for things like a new vehicle or a vacation.

If you are analyzing investments that produce income, consider the flexibility to start and stop income when you want. Sometimes in retirement, people end up not spending all of the inflows that they are receiving. It's great to have the ability to stop the income, reinvesting into new shares and/ or deferring to avoid withdrawals that result in income taxation.

Consider the flexibility to completely sell out of your investment. How do you liquidate when you want to? Your "best" investment today may no longer be desirable in the future. Markets change. Interest rates change. Your needs will change.

Your sources of retirement income should be diversified, complimentary to each other and have a degree of flexibility. You'll know in your stage of planning when you reach this point because the outlook for the future is less daunting and is often replaced with a sigh of relief.

PUBLISHER'S LETTER Father's Day!

Dear Reader,

Father's Day is just around the corner—a perfect time to reflect on the men who raised us, guided us, and helped shape who we are. Fathers, notably, were there at the very beginning of our lives—and have hopefully stood by us ever since. Everyone needs a good father. A good father takes his responsibilities seriously, especially the profound responsibility of raising children.

We can learn so much from a good father. He teaches, he walks with us through the victories and tribulations of life. He is there when we need him most.

I remember when I was heading off to school, I asked my father for advice I could carry with me. He shared something timeless—essentially the advice Polonius gives his son Laertes in Shakespeare's *Hamlet*: "To thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man." Simple words that carry profound wisdom: authenticity men who The best and integrity serve as the foundation for a life well-lived.

The best fathers provide both roots and wings—stability to know where home is and confidence to venture into the world. They teach us to face challenges with courage, to treat others with respect, and to understand that character matters more than achievement.

My father taught me that listening is often more important than speaking, that keeping promises builds trust that no amount of explanation can restore once broken, and that showing up—consistently and reliably—speaks volumes about what we truly value.

To all the fathers who show up day after day, who balance guidance with freedom, who demonstrate love through both words and actions—thank you. Your legacy lives on in the lives you've touched and the values you've instilled.
