Welcome

WELCOME TO WALTERBORO

Established in 1826, Walterboro offers the best of South Carolina — rich history, untouched nature, economic potential and small-town charm.

Bill Young
Mayor of Walterboro

The City of Walterboro was founded by Paul and Jacob Walter in 1783 as a summer retreat from their rice plantations, and locals agree that's still how we view our historic settlement today. Walterboro is known as The Front Porch of the Lowcountry, boasting Southern charms, history, culture and hospitality.

Let the red rocking chair be your beacon and come rock with us.

Spend your time in Walterboro learning about Lowcountry wildlife and nature in the recently opened Walterboro Wildlife Center and follow it up with a walk in the Walterboro Wildlife Sanctuary. Meander through various shops in our historic downtown or take in some history at the Colleton Museum. Find art and culture abounding at the South Carolina Artisans Center, a historic Victorian-style cottage hosting art from over 300 South Carolinian artists. The Front Porch is brimming with nature, culture and history.

While we pride ourselves on small-town charm and history, there is also much to offer in the way of economic development. Walterboro is a place where small businesses grow and succeed on their own merit. Our thriving downtown and growing commercial corridor create an abundance of jobs for those across all stages of life.

Being located in the heart of the Lowcountry makes traveling convenient. Walterboro is just a quick hour from Charleston, Beaufort, Summerville, Columbia and Savannah, right off of I-95, and within an hour of two international airports. There's big city access from small town living. You can truly have your cake and eat it too.

So come, stay a day, stay a lifetime. We're saving you a seat on The Front Porch of the Lowcountry.

south carolina

Perfectly located an hour west of Charleston and an hour from Savannah sits Colleton County, a gem filled with lush natural landscapes, pristine waters, hundreds of years of history and, most important of all, friendly faces. Walk under our 1,000-year-old live oaks dripping with Spanish Moss. Paddle down our black river waters and fish from our coastal marshes. Enjoy our acreage abundant with wildlife. Our close-knit community is like no other, and we welcome you to our Southern community called Colleton. We call it home.

HIGHER EDUCATION AT HOME

University of South Carolina Salkehatchie: Start Here, Go Anywhere.

As a campus of the University of South Carolina, USC Salkehatchie brings the quality of the university to Walterboro and the surrounding region.

Students may earn baccalaureate degrees in nursing and elementary education without leaving their community, and an additional 14 baccalaureate degrees are available through the University's Palmetto College online program. Students take the first two years of coursework at USC Salkehatchie and can complete their program online in the following fields: business administration (accounting), business administration (management), health promotion, health informatics, hospitality management, human services, information science, information management and systems liberal studies, organizational leadership, criminal justice, childhood education and industrial process engineering, in partnership with Savannah River Nuclear Solutions and the Department of Energy.

The University of South Carolina Salkehatchie boasts an internationally diverse faculty dedicated to providing quality educational experiences to students.

To make give its students a true college experience, USC Salk offers "Salk Place," a residential living community for students in the downtown Walterboro area, just minutes away from the campus.

The USC Salkehatchie East campus is home to the NJCAA Region X men's basketball and women's volleyball teams. Home games at the Salk Arena are filled with students, faculty and community members cheering for the Indians as they compete on the court.

Visit the East campus, also called USC Salk, at 807 Hampton Street in Walterboro or learn more online at: uscsalkehatchie.sc.edu and palmettocollege.sc.edu.

A GATEWAY INTO THE LOW COUNTRY

Guests wanting to travel to many of South Carolina's resort plantations, beach communities, cities and ports have a convenient way to get to all of these destinations – without the hassle of flying into larger, commercial airports. The Lowcountry Regional Airport is located in Walterboro. It is the largest regional aviation airport in the Palmetto State, and local Colleton County leaders describe it as an aeronautical gateway to Charleston, Columbia, Beaufort, Hilton Head and Savannah.

The Lowcountry Regional Airport is a hub for pilots who are sight-seeing and who need a rest between schedules. It is also an ideal landing location for busy businessmen and women who are coming to the area as part of the entire Lowcountry's bustling industrial and tourism scene.

The local airport boasts three runways. Each runway ranges from 5,500 feet to 6,022 feet. The airport's leadership team has secured 80 more acres on site. This land is being used to extend the main runway to accommodate larger aircraft.

The airport itself features a pilots' lounge for pilots and visitors, bathrooms and shower facilities. The space is also frequently used by the local ACE Basin Aviation Flight School and by military cadets in area flight training programs. The airport itself also has an office, kitchen space for weary pilots, a training center, a shop space and hangar and ramp space. The airport also provides full service for jets coming into the airport, including fuel at highly-competitive rates.

- Airport Services
- Terminal & Lounge
- Office space and comfortable lounge area
- Hangar and ramp space
- Crew internet access (WiFi Access)
- Jet-A, Full Service
- AVGas, Self-Service and Full-Service
- 5,000 Gallon Jet Fuel Truck
- 3,000 Gallon jet fuel truck
- 1,500 gallon AV Gas Truck
- Aircraft Maintenance and repair
- Crew car
- Catering and rental cars are available
- Terminal hangars and tiedown, available for rent.
- ACE Basin Aviation Flight School

The Lowcountry Regional Airport is located at 537 Aviation Way in Walterboro. They can be reached at 843-549-2549 and at www.lowcountryairport.com.

WORLD-CLASS ACCESS

Colleton's location, vision and resources have us primed for growth

Colleton's industries have access to the best of everything

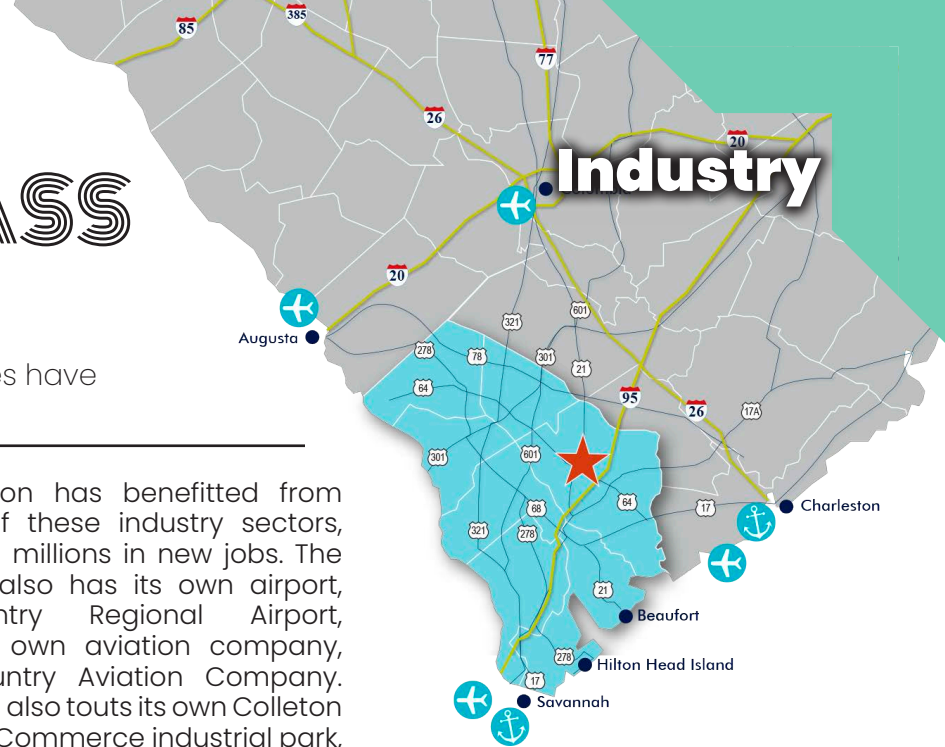

Think of what it means to be situated between two world-recognized and growing tourist and industrial markets, in our case, that is Savannah and Charleston. Both are picturesque and are tourist meccas, but also have world-class ports, two commercial airports, and two military installations. This puts Colleton within an hour to these major advantages for economic development, meaning we have access to watercraft, aviation, automotive, agricultural and forest-producing industries.

Colleton has benefitted from some of these industry sectors, bringing millions in new jobs. The county also has its own airport, Lowcountry Regional Airport, and its own aviation company, Low-country Aviation Company. Colleton also touts its own Colleton County Commerce industrial park, which is alongside Interstate 95.

To continue utilizing the unique benefits of our fortunate geography, Colleton County officials are maintaining and developing its inventory of available industry sites and buildings.

Keeping Colleton County a major player in the growth of the entire Palmetto State and the regional coast is about investing time, energy and resources in developing the community, all while keeping its natural resources abundant and its work force ready and trained.

FLOWING DOWN THE EDISTO

The longest free-flowing blackwater river in North America flows through Colleton County. Meandering slowly from its source in the Upstate of South Carolina, in Saluda and Edgefield Counties, the river flows through Colleton County toward the Atlantic Ocean, where it merges with two other rivers and dumps into the ACE Basin. The ACE Basin, which represents the Ashepoo River, the Combahee River and the Edisto River, is one of the pristine places in the United States. It is federally protected and preserved.

The river itself spans across 11 counties in South Carolina and covers more than 5,000 miles. The Edisto River resembles a flowing cup of black tea: the river water is stained dark from the many leaves of trees that reach into it from its banks. It is a favorite recreational spot for kayakers, canoers and fishermen. It is also a beloved spot for nature lovers and river tubers, who can roll through the waters and explore the large trees and cypress knots. The river moves in and out of channels, which resemble tangled fingers that can take kayakers and tubers into the Four Holes Swamp and into smaller natural spots. The Edisto also is home to sporadic sand bars and landscapes, that give nature-lovers a convenient place to pause and enjoy a packed lunch or a cool dip.

Access to the river is easy: the Colleton State Park and the Givhans State Park are located along her banks.

The Edisto River is often cleaned and protected by several non-profit organizations, including the Edisto Riverkeeper, Friends of the Edisto, and the Edisto River Canoe and Kayak Trail.

The latter is a group of volunteers but is also an actual 57-mile trail that boasts gentle and flat passages through the Edisto's sultry waters. As for the ERCK group, they often host a series of paddle exhibitions and trips down the Edisto River. For more information, or to plan a trip along the Edisto River, visit the group's Web sit at www.erccktrail.org.

For information on public park access spots and campsites along the Edisto River, visit www.southcarolinaparks.com or call 1-866-345-7275.

Things To Do

S.C. ARTISANS CENTER

Handmade treasures from selected artists always delight at South Carolina's official folk art retail center

You could hunt all over the state for authentic handcrafted art representing South Carolina's rich and diverse cultural heritage.

Or you could pop over to the South Carolina Artisans Center. To explore the handcrafted Art by handpicked Artists. See, Touch, Smell, Taste, and Shop Art.

Located in Walterboro just minutes from I-95, the state's official folk art and craft center is a one-stop showcase for fine handmade crafts of every imaginable variety and media, from Gullah sweetgrass baskets to Southern face jugs, a craft tradition started in Edgefield by African slaves who worked on plantations as potters.

Along with the indigenous folk art created using centuries-old craft techniques, the collection also includes contemporary crafts, large installation sculptures and two-dimensional art.

Fittingly, the nonprofit gallery is housed in a restored eight-room Victorian cottage built in the late 1800s in Walterboro's historic district. Inside you'll find pottery, paintings, jewelry, quilts, mobiles, vases and furnishings.

The art collection features the work of more than 200 South Carolina master artisans selected in a two-stage juried process that includes an evaluation by independent professional jurors. Diversity not only represents the population of South Carolina but the offerings at the Center.

Despite the high quality of the wares, you can find Art at every price point.

To be sure, there are plenty of pricier items that have been among the collection, including a $3,500 sweetgrass basket made by a well-known Gullah artist using a unique coiling technique handed down from her West African ancestors.

One of the most impressive and expensive items in the center is a $58,000 one-of-a-kind wooden canoe handcrafted by a local artist who lives just outside town. As much works of art as functional boats, these canoes are made from exotic and indigenous woods, fetching as much as $160,000 for a commissioned tandem.

As its mission, the South Carolina Artisans Center showcases and markets handcrafted artwork of the state's leading artists, while ensuring that art inspired by tradition is protected and nurtured; a gallery that speaks to the unique talents of handpicked South Carolina artists.

Treatment

Our outpatient and intensive outpatient programs are geared toward individuals seeking treatment for Substance Use Disorders (SUD). Groups and individual sessions help individuals to identify and address triggers and cravings, while creating person-centered recovery plans.

To address the abuse and misuse of medications, several prescription drop boxes have been placed throughout Colleton County. Medicine drop boxes are the best way to safely discard of unused or expired prescription medication.

Recovery is a lifelong process. Pillars4Hope provides touchpoints throughout. Whether through relationships with others in recovery or connections in the community, we help you along the way.

Our Peer Support Program is person-centered and recovery oriented. Certified Peer Support Specialists who are in long term recovery use their personal experiences to help others through their own unique recovery by building bridges, removing barriers, and empowering them to live self-directed lives.

We at Pillars4Hope are passionate about our work to reduce the negative impacts of substance use disorders. We provide addiction treatment and recovery services to people in our community who need us and are ready to do the work with us. We also provide preventive services to minimize future risk of addiction.

TEE OFF IN TOWN

Dogwood Hills Golf Course offers something for everyone.

Dogwood Hills Public Golf Course, located at 1 Dogwood Lane in Walterboro, offers a challenging nine-hole course situated on a beautiful 141-acre backdrop of magnolias, live oaks, pine trees and, naturally, dogwood trees.

The course abounds in the natural beauty of Lowcountry living, meaning a bad day of golf is better than a good day at work and any time is tee-time.

At Dogwood Hills, you'll find several ponds where wildlife abounds and you just might find an alligator or two sunning on the banks. In addition, the course offers a well-stocked pro shop, putting green and a spot to work on your short game.

Looking for some friendly competition in your golf game? Dogwood Hills is home to numerous tournaments and fundraisers throughout the year, including Senior Play on Tuesdays and Friday at 8:30 a.m., along with Thursday Night Scramble with a 5:30 tee time.

Playing a round of golf at Dogwood Hills Golf Course is an affordable entertainment option with pricing and packaging available for everyone and for all ages.

To learn more about the course, schedule a tee-time or find out about scheduling a tournament or event, call 843-538-2731.

EDISTO BEACH, SC

LOWCOUNTRY REGIONAL AIRPORT

THE GATEWAY TO THE LOWCOUNTRY

OUR HISTORY

Dedicated as an airfield in 1933, Lowcountry Regional Airport has a military history. During World War II, the airfield was turned over to the United States Army Air Force for training. Some of the most notable pilots were Tuskegee Airmen, who completed their final combat training onsite and who are honored with a memorial at the airport's Army Airfield Park.

WE PROVIDE

Flight School on Site • Sightseeing and Aerial Photos • Air Charters • Highly Competitive Fuel Prices • Courtesy Car Services • Aircraft Maintenance On Field • Avgas Self Service 24/7 • 6,000' Runway With ODAEs And PAPIs And Parallel Taxiway • Instrument Approaches to Four Runways • ILS & GPS Available • Car Rentals by Hertz, Enterprise and Walterboro Ford

COMMUNITY

We partner with several local initiatives including the Ace Basin Composite Squadron, Civil Air Patrol and local school programs to provide aviation exposure to our youth.

We are working hard to rebuild from the tornado damage as soon as possible.
