HEIGHT OF SUCCESS

Over the next few years, the Pointer Sisters achieved their greatest commercial success. In 1980, their single "He's So Shy", reached number three on the chart, and the following year a ballad, "Slow Hand", reached number two. [The follow-up, "Should I Do It", featured a classic girl-group sound. Richard Perry then sold Planet to RCA Records in 1982. The first release from this new union was So Excited!

In 1984, they achieved four US Billboard Hot 100 top 10 singles in a row. "Automatic" reached No. "Jump (For My Love)" reached No. 3; a remix of "I'm So Excited" was added to the album almost a year into its shelf life and reached No. 9; and "Neutron Dance", also featured on the Beverly Hills Cop soundtrack, reached No. 6.
